Welcome to the Book of Jargon® – Global Mergers & Acquisitions. For readers who are lawyers, bankers, or studying to be one, this book can serve as an introduction to the legal and business terms — including corporate and private equity sponsor terminology — often encountered in the structuring, negotiation and execution of mergers, acquisitions and dispositions in many countries around the globe.

From statutory terms and nomenclature to sometimes colorful slang, this book includes the words that comprise both home country law and the lingua franca of the M&A world — which has become truly global. Whether private equity or strategic, most deals now cross borders, either due to the global nature of the business being acquired or sold, or because public companies combine to create truly global enterprises. In response, the authors have endeavored to provide an equally global Book of Jargon. This first edition includes key M&A terms used in the United States, the United Kingdom, France, Germany, Hong Kong, Italy, Qatar, Russia, Saudi Arabia, Singapore, Spain and the United Arab Emirates.

This glossary of more than 1,500 financial, legal and regulatory terms in the M&A area is also available as a free app for Apple and Android devices. These apps will always contain our most up-to-date glossaries.

Latham & Watkins publishes a series of practice area-specific glossaries. This publication does not itself constitute legal advice. The terms are also subject to change as applicable laws and customary practice evolve.

The authors welcome suggestions for additional terms as well as expanded or clarified definitions for the current terms via e-mail to Mergerglossary@lw.com

Acceleration: the end of the line in the Bond and loan world. The definitions of "Default" and "Event of Default" describe how we get there. Following an Event of Default, the bondholders (in accordance with the Terms and Conditions or the Indenture) or Lenders (under a Credit Agreement) have the right to "accelerate" the Due Date of their debts; in other words, they have the right to declare their Bonds or loans immediately due and payable. Note that practice in the US (and in European Indentures) is for Insolvency Events of Default to automatically lead to Acceleration, however this is uncommon in European bank financings. Note that Acceleration can lead to an obligation on the officers of the Issuer/Borrower to file for Insolvency, thereby precluding the ability to agree a consensual out-of-court Restructuring.

Jurisdiction:

Accordo di Ristrutturazione: a pre-Insolvency Restructuring agreement under Article 182-bis of the Italian bankruptcy law. Filings bring about a stay on creditor action for 60 days, and the company can obtain an immediate stay preceding the agreement in certain circumstances. Must be supported by a report by an independent auditor attesting the agreement's feasibility and suitability to allow payment of all external creditors, and requires the approval of 60 percent of the creditors (by value). Must be homologated, or officially approved, by the bankruptcy court.

Consideration can be structured many ways and not all the consideration is necessarily paid at Closing of the sale and purchase. Some portion of the agreed consideration may be deferred and paid at a later date (referred to as the Deferred Consideration), or the parties may agree to additional consideration being paid if certain triggers are met (referred to as "Additional Consideration," Contingent Consideration or Earn Out depending on their nature). Advance Notice Bylaw: a bylaw requiring a stockholder who intends to make a motion or nominate a candidate for the Board of Directors at a Shareholders' Meeting to provide the company with notice a specified time prior to the Shareholders' Meeting and usually requiring the shareholder to supply information about the proponent and candidate

1. (US) Advance Notice Bylaws apply to proposals other than those brought pursuant to SEC Rule 14a-8. They are considered an important defensive mechanism in the context of actual or threatened Proxy Contests, and a stockholder's failure to comply with all of the conditions of an Advance Notice Bylaw, at least in theory, would allow the company to disregard the motion or nomination. For that reason, a claim by a company of failure to comply will often provoke litigation testing both the facts and the underlying validity of the Advance Notice Bylaw as a matter of state corporation law.

All or Substantially All: this phrase is used in contractual provisions and corporate statutes, but the precise meaning is the subject of much debate (and litigation). It does not necessarily mean what it sounds like in general layman's terms. In general Substantially All means more than 50 percent, but how much more and what categories should be measured to determine whether the event fits the phrase (e.g., assets, revenues, profits) are critical issues. Another critical issue is how to measure the object of the qualifying phrase, e.g., assets. Should the assets be measured in terms of value, revenue producing capability, profit producing capability or some other attribute? Similar issues abound in the measurement of revenues (e.g., over what period, on a cash or an Accrual basis, etc.).

1. (US) see, e.g., Sharon Steel Corp. v. Chase Manhattan Bank, N.A., 691 F.2d 1039 (2d Cir. 1982); B.S.F. Co. v. Phila. Nat'l Bank, 204 A.2d 746 (Del. 1964); and Hollinger Inc. v. Hollinger Internat'l, Inc., 858 A.2d 342 (Del. 2004).

Jurisdiction:

Anti-Takeover Laws: a generic reference to state or national statutes, as applicable, that impede or preclude Hostile Takeovers

1. (US) there have been several US Supreme Court cases dealing with whether various types of state Anti-Takeover Laws are pre-empted by the federal Takeover statute and rules. As a practical matter, state Anti-Takeover Laws have virtually no practical impact, because the universality of the Poison Pill precludes Closing on Unilateral Takeovers. Accordingly, Hostile deals invariably end either by being dropped by the Hostile Bidder or by becoming negotiated deals, in which case the Target Company Board will be required to waive the provisions of any applicable Anti-Takeover Law.

2. (SGP) see Frustrating Action

Jurisdiction:

Apostille: a certificate issued pursuant to the Hague Convention of 5 October 1961 Abolishing the Requirement of Legalisation for Foreign Public Documents (the Convention), which facilitates the circulation of public documents between state parties. The Apostille replaces the cumbersome and often costly formalities of a full legalisation process with the mere issuance of a certificate. Instead of legalisation by the appropriate embassy, the notary's certificate and seal are certified as genuine by the competent authority of the state on whose territory the document has been executed. The Convention applies to public documents (such as a notarial act or a document with notarial authentication of signatures) executed in one state party to the Convention and to be used in another state party to the Convention. So now you know.

Jurisdiction:

Appraisal: a process for the judicial determination of the fair value of Shares, in jurisdictions for which Appraisal Rights are asserted

Jurisdiction:

Appraisal Rights: rights provided by statutes that permit shareholders of Target Companies in certain types of Acquisitions to decline receipt of the Merger Consideration, and in lieu thereof, to sue in court to receive a judicially determined value for Shares of the Target Company. Exercise of Appraisal Rights usually requires strict adherence to statutory requirements.

1. (US) in practice, shareholders historically have rarely availed themselves of Appraisal Rights because of the procedural hurdles to assertion in an Appraisal proceeding and because of the costs, uncertainties and time involved to complete litigation. However, the historical trend is changing

Jurisdiction:

Arbitrage: profiting by trading on price disparities involving the same item, similar items or fungible items. One type of Arbitrage involves capturing a difference in price for the same item in different markets (e.g., if a Common Stock is traded on both the NYSE and the LSE and does so at slightly different prices, an Arbitrageur can buy Stock in the cheaper market and sell the same amount of Stock in the other, pocketing the difference). See also Risk Arbitrage and Merger Arbitrage.

Jurisdiction:

Asset Acquisition: a Combination effected through the Acquisition of assets from a Target Company. In most jurisdictions, an Asset Acquisition typically also involves an assumption of certain liabilities; however, because the parties can bargain over which assets will be acquired and which liabilities will be assumed, the transaction form can be far more flexible in its structure and outcome than a Merger, Combination or Stock Purchase. See also Asset Purchase Agreement and 363 Sale.

1. (HKG) in the Hong Kong context, consideration should be given as to whether an Asset Acquisition may constitute a business acquisition — in which case the Transfer of Businesses (Protection of Creditors) Ordinance applies

Jurisdiction:

Assignment: a transfer of rights and, if possible, obligations under a contract (e.g., a Credit Agreement to a new Lender)

2. (FRA) under French law, while you can assign rights, you are not able to assign obligations (see therefore Assignment and Assumption and also Novation). Called délégation under French law.
3. (ITA) under Italian law an Assignment of obligations does not generally imply the release of the transferor, absent consent from the transferred party

Jurisdiction:

1. (UK and HKG) when an Assignment does not work due to the inability under English/Hong Kong law to assign obligations, and/or where a Novation is not practicable due to loss of Security implications, English/Hong Kong law uses an Assignment and Assumption
2. (FRA) under French law, called a délégation parfaite
3. (ITA) under Italian law an Assignment of obligations does not generally imply the release of the transferor, absent consent from the transferred party

Jurisdiction:

Assignment Provision: a provision in a contract specifying under what terms and conditions the contract may be assigned for some or all purposes by a party to another entity or person. Assignments may be entire, or may be limited — as in an Assignment of payment streams or (except in Hong Kong) an Assignment of obligations. Sometimes called an Anti-Assignment Provision if it specifies that the contract may not be assigned (or may not be assigned except under specified circumstances) to another party for all or certain purposes.

Jurisdiction:

Assumed Liabilities: liabilities assumed by a Buyer in connection with an Asset Acquisition

Jurisdiction:

Asymmetrical Collar: when used to describe Exchange Ratio Collars, means Collars that deviate from the reference value or reference ratio by different amounts or percentages. So what goes up does not always come down in the same proportion or vice-versa.

Auction: a generic term used to describe a process for selling a Target Company or the assets of a Seller. The process involves at least two Bidders making Bids in competition with one another. There are no settled rules for an Auction, but two patterns are most common: (1) a controlled, limited, private, or Quiet Auction in which a limited number of parties are invited to participate and the process is almost always intended to be confidential; and (2) a Widespread Auction or Public Auction in which a larger number of parties are invited to participate, sometimes by what amounts to a public notice of the Auction Process.

In contrast to an Income Statement, which depicts a company's operations over a period of time, a Balance Sheet provides a "snapshot" as of a moment in time. Bankruptcy: in the US, Bankruptcy is a federal court process under the Bankruptcy Code whereby a company restructures its debt under the auspices of the Bankruptcy Court. There are advantages (such as the ability to Cram-Down a plan on dissenting creditors) and disadvantages (such as high costs and public disclosure requirements) to restructuring debts in a US Bankruptcy, as opposed to out of court. Restructuring debts in Europe is typically an out of court process, although court-based procedures such as Schemes of Arrangement are used as implementation tools, with Insolvency marking the typically court-driven end of the line. See also Insolvency.

1. (HKG) in Hong Kong, the term Bankruptcy is generally only used to refer to individual debtors and the applicable process under the Bankruptcy Ordinance to realise an insolvent individual's assets and distribute the proceeds amongst his/her creditors. With respect to corporate insolvencies, the terms commonly used are Liquidation or Winding Up.

Beneficial Owner: generally, where equity allows the use and benefit of property to belong to a person even though legal title of the property belongs to another person

1. (US) Section 13(d) of the Exchange Act and related SEC Rules (most notably Rule 13d-3) cover the details of this concept. In short, if a person has the power to vote or dispose of a particular Security, either individually or as part of a Group or others Acting In Concert, then such person is the Beneficial Owner of that Security.
2. (UK) the Law of Property Act 1925 requires that the transfer of an equitable interest in property (including Shares) must be in writing. The Articles of Association of some UK companies restrict the transfer of only "beneficial ownership" (as compared to the transfer of full legal title, being legal and beneficial ownership).
3. (DEU) in general, the beneficial ownership is agreed between the shareholders of an entity and a third party. Section 39 of the general tax code (Abgabenordnung) covers the details of this concept for the tax assessment. Section 246 of the German Commercial Code (Handelsgesetzbuch) requires the Beneficial Owner of an asset to disclose such information in its Balance Sheet.
4. (ESP) as per Royal Decree 1066/2007, of July 27, on public Takeover Bids, refers to an individual or entity actually enjoying the benefits of ownership of a property with the power to vote or dispose of that particular asset.

5. (FRA) there is no direct French equivalent of the term Beneficial Owner as used in other jurisdictions. It may be used to describe persons Acting in Concert.
6. (HKG) Hong Kong law recognizes the concept of beneficial ownership of property; however, the Companies Ordinance provides that no notice of any trust shall be entered on the register of Members, and provides that the holder of Shares on the register is therefore the only person the company recognizes as having an interest in the relevant Shares.
7. (QAT) Law No.(25) of 2004 (the Proxy Law) prohibits certain "beneficial ownership" arrangements in situations where a Qatari may be seen as assisting a foreign shareholder to circumvent laws designed to limit a foreign Investor's rights, such as special voting arrangements
8. (RUS) there is no direct Russian law equivalent of a Beneficial Owner as such term is used in UK law. The term "beneficiary" is used to describe a party that manages and can be entitled to the use of assets which are legally owned by another party. The notion of "Beneficial Owner" in its true sense is used in reference to persons who can exercise de facto control over the company pursuant to legal provisions of foreign jurisdictions.
9. (UAE) in order to minimize the effect of the local 51 percent shareholding requirement, in an LLC arrangement, conditions are often put in place to split the legal and beneficial ownership of the company. A foreign shareholder will often beneficially own more than 51 percent of the Shares of the LLC but legally will only hold a maximum of 49 percent.

Jurisdiction:

Best and Final Bid: an aspirational description by a Target Company of the kind of Offer it wants to receive from a Bidder. The term is also often used by a Bidder to describe the Bidder's current Offer and thereby encourage the Target Company to give up its aspirations for a better Offer. When the term is used by the Bidder it sometimes is, in fact, an accurate description of the Offer. Other times, it is a bluff and the Bidder would in fact be willing to pay more.

Jurisdiction:

Best Efforts: a common provision in an Acquisition Agreement to describe how hard a party needs to work to make good on its commitments. Like many other familiar contract terms (e.g., All or Substantially All), just what constitutes Best Efforts is far from clear. In many contracts, the nature of Best Efforts is modified by one or several adjectives, such as "Reasonable Best Efforts" or "Commercial Best Efforts" or even "Commercially Reasonable Best Efforts." The point of the adjectives is to give greater clarity about just how hard (or not) the party must try to fulfill its promise. See also Best Endeavors.

Nonetheless, Bidders typically comply, unless the Bidder decides to try to preempt the described Bid Process. See also Preemptive Bid.

Blank Check Preferred Stock: a Class of Preferred Stock that, pursuant to the Charter, may be issued in separate series, with each series having particular preferences and Rights described in a Certificate of Designations adopted by a Board resolution and filed with state officials as a part of the Charter. Because a Board has total flexibility to design the terms of each series of Blank Check Preferred Stock, it can potentially be used as an adjunct to a Takeover Defense. In practice, however, few Takeover Defenses (e.g., in Poison Pills) actually utilize Blank Check Preferred Stock. This is a case of the bark being far worse than the bite.

Board Recommendation: a recommendation by a Board of Directors that shareholders vote upon a proposal in a specified way. Bidders will invariably seek a Covenant and a condition that the Target Company's Board will recommend the deal.

1. (US) under Delaware judicial precedents, a Target Company's Board probably does not have the ability to contract away its exercise of its Fiduciary Duties to be able to change its recommendation under all circumstances; hence the Covenant that the Target Company will not change its recommendation almost always is subject to a Fiduciary Out. Exercise of the Fiduciary Out will customarily Trigger a termination right for the Buyer, and such a termination will usually Trigger the payment of a Termination Fee by the Target Company's Board.
2. (FRA) under French law, in the context of a Tender Offer, the Target's Board must issue a recommendation to the shareholders

3. (HKG) the Hong Kong Stock Exchange Listing Rules and HK Takeovers Code respectively require Board Recommendations in certain circumstances or transactions. In some situations, a recommendation from an independent board committee may be required.

The purpose of a Bridge Loan is to provide a Bidder with Committed Financing in the context of an Acquisition Agreement that is intended or required to be Fully Financed at the time it is signed, as would be the case if the long-term funding plan for the Acquisition included Notes or Bonds, which would not be issued prior to consummation of the Acquisition. The name “Bridge” comes from its purpose of bridging the timing gap in the acquisition financing plan. Traditionally, Bridge Loans are used by PE Sponsors in Auction situations, but corporate Buyers also sometimes use Bridge Loans to finance Acquisitions. In the Commitment Papers context, Bridge Loans are sometimes referred to as the Bridge Facility. See also Bridge Financing.

Business Judgment Rule: the default standard of judicial review of Board decisions under Delaware and almost all other US state corporation laws and, as applicable, certain national corporate laws. In its typical formulation as a procedural rule, the Business Judgment Rule means that, in reviewing a plaintiff's claim that a Board of Directors breached its Fiduciary Duty to its shareholders, a court will presume that the Board acted in Good Faith, with due care and with loyalty to the company and its shareholders. The plaintiff ordinarily has the burden of proof of rebutting the presumptions inherent in the Business Judgment Rule. The related substantive formulation of the Business Judgment Rule is that a court will not second-guess a Board's judgment unless the actions of the Board lack any rational basis. Similar reasonableness tests apply in other jurisdictions outside the US.

Bylaws: together with the Charter, Bylaws usually make up the Constituent Documents of a corporation in many jurisdictions

(US) under the enabling policy of US state corporation laws, a company's Bylaws may contain any number of permissive provisions dealing with the election and functioning of the Board of Directors, the content and conduct of Shareholders' Meetings, the titles and job descriptions of senior executive officers, Indemnification of officers and directors, and other matters affecting the governance of the company. Unlike Articles of Incorporation, under most US state corporation statutes, directors and shareholders have co-extensive rights to adopt, amend, and rescind Bylaws without the approval of the other constituency. Accordingly, Bylaws are customarily viewed as being a more flexible tool for allocation of governance roles and responsibilities than Articles of Incorporation which require the concurrence of both the Board and shareholders for adoption, amendment or rescission.
2. (UK) called Articles of Association, they set out the constitutional rules by which the company is governed. This document must be registered at Companies House. Call Option: one party's contractual right, but not obligation, to call for the delivery of particular asset (i.e., Shares) at a particular future point in time or within a particular time period at a Strike Price. Call Options often have an expiration period and are often used in public M&A as a tool to acquire an initial interest in the underlying Shares.

Capital Duty: a tax charged in certain jurisdictions upon the issue of Share Capital or other Securities. See also Franchise Tax and Stamp Duty

Jurisdiction:

Capital Expenditures: expenditures by a party for investments in fixed assets. Such expenditures are capitalized to the Balance Sheet of the party under applicable accounting rules and then amortized as an Income Statement expense over a period of more than one year, rather than being immediately expensed to the Income Statement in full in the current period. A Capital Expenditure is distinguished from a current expense because the asset has a long-term impact that will benefit the business in future years as well as the current year. In the context of business valuations the Free Cash Flow, which is material to the Enterprise Value, is determined by subtracting the Capital Expenditures from the cash flow.

Jurisdiction:

Capital Gains Tax: a tax on the profit which is applied in various jurisdictions on a realized asset (i.e., Shares). See also acronym CGT. Transaction structures are often considered in the context of CGT liability.

A company's Capital Structure is generally divided into several distinct constituencies, such as senior debt, subordinated debt and equity (common or preferred). Note the structure may look very different pre- and post- Acquisition in a Leveraged Buyout.

Jurisdiction:

Capped: when used in the context of either a Cash Election or Stock Election transaction, Capped means that one or both forms of consideration are limited in amount. The fact that one or both forms of consideration are Capped requires that the Acquisition Agreement deal with allocation of consideration if the Capped form of consideration election is Oversubscribed. The two most common allocation structures are to allocate an Oversubscribed type of consideration on either a pro rata or a per capita basis. See Per Capita Acceptance and Pro Rata Acceptance.

Jurisdiction:

Carrez Amendment: French tax rule enacted in 2012 and named after the parliament member who proposed it. The Carrez Amendment limits the deductibility of interest a French company incurs to acquire Shares when the company does not in fact make the decisions pertaining to such Shares. This provision was discussed frequently in French LBOs in 2012.

Jurisdiction:

Carried Interest: a name for the fee structure Private Equity Sponsors commonly use as compensation for managing Private Equity Funds, including the Acquisition, and for managing and disposing of Portfolio Companies. The fee structure (which is not unique to Private Equity Funds) consists of the payment to the PE Sponsor of a specified amount of money (usually a percentage) of proceeds which Private Equity Funds realize on their investments. If properly structured under current tax laws (including US tax laws), Carried Interest will have the same tax attributes in the hands of the PE Sponsor as in hands of other participants in the Private Equity Funds. Since the paradigm for Private Equity Funds is to realize capital gain, not ordinary income, most Carried Interest will also be taxable to the PE Sponsor as capital gain not ordinary income. If, as is almost always the case, the PE Sponsor is an LP or an LLC, the capital gain treatment will flow through to its Partners or Members.

The Cash Confirmation — which is usually given by the Offeror's Financial Advisor — is needed wherever cash forms part of the purchase price in a UK Public Company Takeover. A Cash Confirmation is a statement in the 2.7 Announcement and in the Offer Document that Bidco has the required cash to pay all accepting shareholders in full. The equivalent concept exists in the HK Takeovers Code. See also Certain Funds.

Jurisdiction:

Cash Election: a Business Combination in which Target Company shareholders can elect to receive cash in lieu of the Bidder's Stock as consideration for their Equity Interest in the Target Company. Cash Election describes a methodology for delivering consideration to Target Company shareholders in a Business Combination, not the form of the applicable transaction and can be used in a Merger, a Stock Acquisition or an Asset Acquisition. Most commonly, a Cash Election is an alternative to giving each Target shareholder the same mix of Stock and cash consideration received by all other Target Company shareholders. A Cash Election is usually structured so that electing shareholders, and only electing shareholders, can receive all of their Merger Consideration in the form of cash (assuming, of course, that the Cash Election is not Oversubscribed). Reasons for structuring a transaction as a Cash Election include tax considerations for certain types of Target Company shareholders or a clear preference by some shareholders for cash and others for Bidder's Stock. Ordinarily, a transaction provides a Cash Election when the predominant form of consideration is Stock, and Stock is the default form of consideration.

Certain Funds: generally, a bank’s affirmation to provide for a certain amount of time the loans agreed on under the Facilities agreement. The Takeover Panel and a number of comparable European regulators in Public Company Takeovers also require Certain Funds. In order for the Cash Confirmation to be issued (or equivalent step taken in jurisdictions other than the UK), the Financing Commitments for a Going Private transaction need to be almost completely condition free (so the Bidder can be “certain” that it will have the funds when it needs them). Although the Certain Funds requirement only applies as a matter of regulation to Acquisitions of European Public Companies, Buyers of Private Companies may also seek from their Lenders Certain Funds commitments to provide the required financing, in particular in LBO transactions. Such Buyers argue Certain Funds gives them a competitive advantage over other Bidders who do not have Certain Funds. See also Cash Confirmation, City Code and Blue Book.

4. (ITA) called OPA "indiretta" or "a cascata," governed by Article 45 of Regulation no. 11971 of 1999

5. (SGP) the Singapore Takeover Code explains the “Chain Principle” as where a person or Group of persons Acting In Concert to acquire statutory control of a company (which need not be a company to which the Singapore Takeover Code applies) acquires or consolidates Effective Control (as defined in the Singapore Takeover Code) of a second company because the first company itself holds (either directly or indirectly through intermediate companies) a controlling interest in the second company, or holds voting rights which, when aggregated with those already held by the person or Group, secure or consolidate Effective Control of the second company

Change in Board Recommendation: one of a number of common terms used in Acquisition Agreements to describe a decision by the Board of Directors of the Target Company that would be inconsistent with its total support of the particular deal. The most common type of inconsistent action would be a withdrawal of the Board’s recommendation to shareholders that they approve the particular deal. However, the term usually encompasses other actions by the Board of Directors, such as recommending in favor of another deal, refusing to reaffirm an earlier Board Recommendation or refusing to recommend against a Unilateral Tender Offer by a Competing Bidder.

Jurisdiction:

Change in Control: see Change of Control

Jurisdiction:

Change of Control: an event or series of events involving a change in ownership, Management or Board composition of a company. A Change of Control may Trigger provisions in various agreements or contracts intended to protect designated parties from changes in circumstances that could result from a Change of Control of a company. A 100 percent Acquisition transaction will constitute a Change of Control. However, the term is usually defined far more broadly, so that an Acquisition of 50 percent or somewhat less (e.g., 45 percent, 40 percent, or under French law in certain circumstances, 33 percent) of the beneficial ownership of a company’s outstanding Capital Stock, a change in the senior executive line-up of the company and/or a defined change in the membership of the Board of Directors will also constitute a Change of Control. Parties typically protected by Change of Control Provisions include executive officers (e.g., through Parachute Payments), employees more generally (e.g., through automatic Stock Option Acceleration provisions in Stock Option and other Stock based incentive compensation plans), and debt holders (through Acceleration provisions in the debt agreement) that in each case are triggered by a Change of Control of the company. Also called a CIC, COC or Change in Control.

Charter: a name for the fundamental document prescribed under state or national corporate laws, as applicable, to create a valid corporation that qualifies for limited liability and all other state or national conferred aspects of incorporation

1. (US) generally called the Articles of Incorporation (California and other states) or the Certificate of Incorporation (Delaware), under the enabling policy of US state corporate statutes, which must contain a few essential provisions (e.g., name of entity, names of incorporators, authorized Classes of Stock, number of authorized Shares of each Class, and may contain any number of other permissive provisions dealing with the rights and powers of the corporation and the governance provisions of the corporation). The Charter can be adopted, amended, or rescinded only by action of the Board of Directors followed by an approving shareholder vote (ranging from a majority of votes held by all outstanding voting Securities to a Supermajority of such votes, such as 66 2/3 percent, 75 percent or 80 percent) specified in the state corporation statute or in the Articles of Incorporation itself. Because of the need for both Board and shareholder approval, Articles of Incorporation are usually thought of as being less flexible and more permanent than Bylaws which can typically be amended by either directors or shareholders acting unilaterally.
2. (UK) analogous to the concept of a company's "Constitution" or the Constitutional Documents, which in the UK are not explicitly defined but are generally deemed to comprise the company's Articles of Association (see also Bylaws), its Memorandum of Association (no longer required for UK companies), and any resolutions or agreements with shareholders to which Part 3, Chapter 3 of the UK Companies Act applies
3. (DEU) called Articles of Incorporation
4. (FRA) see Bylaws

5. (HKG) in Hong Kong this refers to the company's Memorandum of Association and Articles of Association. The new Companies Ordinance (which is due to come into force in 2014) will abolish the Memorandum of Association, leaving the Articles of Association as the sole constitutional document of a company.
6. (ITA) called atto costitutivo, containing the Bylaws as an attachment
7. (QAT, SAU, UAE) called a Commercial Registration, Industrial License or Trade License, this is the constituent document issued by the relevant authority (e.g., the Dubai Economic Department or the Saudi Ministry of Commerce and Industry) on incorporation. The certificates are simple and state the name of the company, its activities, its shareholders and often the general manager.
8. (RUS) the constituent document of a company, regulating certain fundamental issues
9. (SGP) a Singapore company's Constitutional Documents consist of three distinct documents: a Certificate of Incorporation, Memorandum of Association and Articles of Association. The Certificate of Incorporation (issued by the Registrar of Companies) certifies that the company is incorporated from a specified date. The Memorandum of Association is the company's constitution, and sets out the company's structure and aims. The Articles of Association sets out the internal regulations by which the company is governed (analogous to Bylaws).

Coercive: when used in the context of the Unocal/Unitrin Doctrine, Coercive means a Takeover Defense in a US Public Company M&A, which by its structure forces or tends to force stockholders to forego the choice of accepting or voting for a Takeover Bid. The term is also used in the context of describing Takeover Bids which are structured so as to dissuade stockholders from rejecting a Takeover Bid, even if they perceive it as unfavorable (i.e., a Bid whose terms would economically damage any stockholders who do not accept). At its root, the judicial concept of Coercive in the context of M&A situations refers to structural or substantive provisions that threaten stockholders' ability to choose whether or not to accept a Takeover Bid.

In the US, the Statement on Auditing Standards number 72 (SAS 72) spells out the prescribed form a Comfort Letter should take. The party receiving the Comfort Letter usually wants the Comfort Letter to establish that the party's Board exercised appropriate due care and/or to establish a Due Diligence defense. The Comfort Letter allows the recipient to demonstrate reliance on experts for the audited financials and an element of a "reasonable investigation" for the unaudited financials and other unaudited financial information. Comfort Letters are uncommon in M&A transactions. The timing of a Comfort Letter's delivery will be specified in the Acquisition Agreement, as well as whether a Bring Down Comfort Letter will also be required and, if so, when.

Commencement Date: most commonly used to identify the date a defined period begins, such as a Tender Offer Period or a Marketing Period for the sale or placement of Securities. Knowing precisely how to determine a Commencement Date is critical in determining when the measured period ends. For example, in the US “Commencement Date” is a defined term under the SEC Tender Offer Rules under the 1934 Act because many of the SEC Tender Offer Rules are based on time periods that begin on the Commencement Date. Commencement Date in other contexts is a contractual term, so ensure the contract clearly defines the date.

Commitment Fee: a fee paid to the arranger of a Bridge Facility and/or senior secured Credit Facility for the commitment provided in the Commitment Letter. Note that the fee for a Bridge Facility is generally payable when the overall deal closes, whether or not the Bridge Loan is funded. The term also refers to a fee paid on the undrawn portion of a committed Revolver as compensation to the Revolver Lenders for keeping money available for borrowing. See Equity Commitment.

Commitment Letter: the letter by which financial institutions commit to provide loans. In the acquisition finance context, these loans generally consist of a Senior Secured Term Loan Facility and one or more Bridge Loan Facilities to “Bridge” any Notes offering expected as part of the permanent financing — meaning that the Bridge Loans are Committed Financing that will be available if the company is unable to issue the Notes successfully in time to fund the Acquisition Closing. The Commitment Letter consists of the actual text of the letter, along with annexes and exhibits that lay out the terms of the Facilities and the Conditions Precedent to funding.

Jurisdiction:

Commitment Papers: a catch-all term referring to documents that together create Committed Financing, typically consisting of the Commitment Letter, Fee Letter and Engagement Letter (and the related annexes and exhibits)

Jurisdiction:

Committed Financing: means that the providers of the financing and the recipient of the financing have signed Commitment Papers setting forth detailed terms for the provision of the financing. Committed Financing should not be confused with Funds Certain Financing or similar terms used in European M&A. Because the Commitment Papers establishing a Committed Financing are not the definitive loan documentation, but more in the nature of extensive Term Sheets, enforceability of Committed Financing is not as certain as enforceability of definitive documentation.

Jurisdiction:

Committee on Foreign Investment in the United States (CFIUS): an inter-departmental committee of the US executive branch charged with reviewing the national security implications of foreign investments in US companies. See also Foreign Investment Rules.

Jurisdiction:

Common Stock: the equity slice of the capitalization that sits at the bottom of the Capital Structure. Holders of Common Stock receive no interest payments, no principal payments and no Covenants. In most jurisdictions, the only protections for Common Stock holders are the Fiduciary Duties owed to them by the Board of Directors. By contrast, no Fiduciary Duty is owed to the creditors of a solvent company. The creditors' rights are contractual. Whether holders of Preferred Stock are owed a Fiduciary Duty is more complicated because of the nature of Preferred Stock, which often has attributes of Common Stock (particularly the right to vote and subordination to creditors) but also the attributes of debt (such as a preferred right to dividends, which are often fixed in amount, and extensive contract-like provisions regarding the Preferred Stock's rights vis-à-vis the Common Stock). To be safe, you should assume that a company's Board of Directors does not owe its preferred stockholders Fiduciary Duties. Also called Ordinary Shares in many jurisdictions.

The term is derived from Consolidated

Contingent Value Right: a provision in an Acquisition Agreement or a Security issued to Target Company shareholders pursuant to an Acquisition Agreement, pursuant to which Target shareholders will receive additional Merger Consideration if specified contingencies occur. Contingent Value Rights are frequently discussed, but infrequently used, because of the difficulties of negotiating mutually acceptable measurements for realizing the contingency (e.g., reaching certain sales or earning goals). These difficulties are sometimes inherent in the nature of the contingency and are always controversial because of the Buyer's ownership of the assets and business which gives rise to the contingency and the Buyer's naturally strong interests in having a free hand to run the acquired business and reluctance to pay additional consideration. Also referred to as an Earn-Out or CVR.

Also referred to as a Single Cram-Down. See Double Cram-Down for a related structure involving shareholder elections where both types of consideration are limited in amount.

1. (US) also, the confirmation of a plan of Reorganization by a Bankruptcy court, even though one or more classes of creditors or Equity Interest holders has objected to the plan. The confirmed plan will bind all classes of creditors and Equity Interest holders, even those who voted against the plan. Hence the descriptive phrase Cram-Down for what happens to dissenters. This is a key tool for debtors and a major reason that some companies restructure in Bankruptcy, rather than out of court. Governed by §1129(b) of the Bankruptcy Code.

Jurisdiction:

Creeping Tender Offer: a colloquial term for an Acquisition of a large block of a Public Company's Stock (typically a controlling block) through Open Market Accumulations and/or private purchases. The term derives from the concept that the purchases of Stock achieve the ends of a conventional Partial Offer, but through a series of market purchases over time, rather than in a single transaction.

1. (US) because Tender Offers are regulated under the Williams Act and market purchases are not, a fair amount of litigation (and commentary from the practicing bar and academics) surrounds whether or not a Creeping Tender Offer constitutes a Tender Offer within the meaning of the Williams Act and is thus illegal. See Wellman v. Dickinson, 475 F. Supp. 783 (S.D.N.Y. 1979).

Dealer Manager: name for a Financial Advisor to a Bidder in connection with a Tender Offer or Exchange Offer for Stock or debt of a Target Company. The name originated in the early days of modern M&A, when the Dealer Manager did, in fact, manage the solicitation of tenders or exchanges. The name is an anachronism today in Tender Offers and Exchange Offers for Stock because the Dealer Manager no longer provides this service and its role, as a practical matter, is limited to acting as a Financial Advisor to the Bidder. In Tender Offers and Exchange Offers for debt, however, Dealer Managers frequently do manage the solicitation, as well as act as Financial Advisor to the Bidder.

Jurisdiction:

Defined Contribution (Pension) Plan: a pension plan (now more common than a Defined Benefit (Pension) Plan) in which the amount of the employer's annual contribution is specified and the employer's liability is capped to the contributions made and are not tied to the former employee's service or investment performance of the plan.

Directors' Duties:

1. (UK) in the UK, the duties owed by a director to a company are codified in Part 10 of the UK Companies Act. All directors in the UK have a duty to:
 - (i) act in accordance with the company's Constitutional Documents and to exercise their powers for the purposes for which such powers were conferred (section 171);
 - (ii) promote the success of the company for the benefit of shareholders as a whole (section 172). See also Duty of Loyalty;
 - (iii) exercise independent judgment (section 173);
 - (iv) exercise reasonable care, skill and diligence (section 174). See also Duty of Care;
 - (v) avoid a situation in which the director has, or may have, a direct or indirect interest that conflicts or may conflict with the interests of the company (section 175). See also Duty of Candor;
 - (vi) not accept benefits from third parties (section 176);
 - (vii) declare a direct or indirect interest in a proposed transaction or arrangement with the company (section 177); and
 - (viii) declare a direct or indirect interest in a transaction or arrangement, which has already been entered into by the company (section 177).
2. (HKG) in Hong Kong, the Fiduciary duties and duties of skill, care and diligence owed by a director to a company are similar in scope but drawn from the common law instead of statute; they are however due to be partially codified when the new Companies Ordinance comes into force in 2014.

Disclosure Schedule: name for a document setting forth exceptions to Representations and Warranties contained in an Acquisition Agreement. Disclosure Schedules are usually not publicly available and sometimes can be used to avoid public disclosure of an issue or potential liability.

1. (US) the SEC takes the position that omitting public disclosure of material exceptions to Representations and Warranties can render publicly disclosed Representations and Warranties false and misleading. Extreme caution and sound judgment are needed when deciding to use a Disclosure Schedule to mask an otherwise material issue or potential liability.

2. (HKG) more commonly referred to as a Disclosure Letter

Discounted Cash Flow: a common, and many consider the most reliable, financial methodology for determining the value of a business. Discounted Cash Flow is calculated by summing the present value of a projected stream of annual projected earnings, Free Cash Flow, or similar metric measuring the profitability of a company over a significant period of time and discounting the total back to a present value. Like many analyses, a Discounted Cash Flow is only as reliable as its inputs, which include projections of a business' Income Statement over a meaningful number of years (usually five), determining the amount of that income stream in perpetuity (either by calculating an assumed sale value for the business at the end of five years or by calculating the value of the stream into perpetuity, using an assumed rate of growth) and developing and applying a discount rate for purposes of calculating the present value of the projected income stream. Those inputs, in turn, obviously depend on numerous assumptions and theoretical constructs of such matters as the methodology for determining an appropriate discount rate.

Disproportionate Impact Language: many Business MAC provisions contain Carve-Out Provisions specifying that certain declines in the business will not Trigger a Business MAC. Examples include Material Adverse Changes triggered by problems specific to a particular industry, poor economic conditions generally, regulatory changes or an outbreak of war. In many cases, there is then a Carve-Out Provision to this Carve-Out Provision, known as Disproportionate Impact Language, which states that even if the Business MAC was triggered by one of the causes mentioned in the list of carve-outs (e.g., industry decline or general economic conditions), a Business MAC will be deemed to have occurred if the events had a disproportionately severe impact on that particular company, as compared to other companies in its industry.

Distributable Reserves: generally, a company can only make a Dividend Declaration if it has sufficient Distributable Reserves to do so. This amount will be subject to technical review in each case, but a company's profits available for Distribution are broadly its accumulated realized profits, so far as not previously utilized by Distribution or capitalization, less its accumulated realized losses, so far as not previously written off in a reduction or Reorganization of capital duly made.

Dividend Declaration: a decision by a Board of Directors to make a payment with respect to Stock. Dividends on Preferred Stock are usually fixed in amount and payable quarterly under the terms of the Preferred Stock.

1. (US) under US state corporation laws, the dividend may not be paid until the Board formally votes on payment (the Dividend Declaration). A Board's failure to declare a Preferred Stock dividend results in the dividend being in arrears. Preferred Stock dividends in arrears usually must be paid before any dividends may be paid on Common Stock. Unlike Preferred Stock, Common Stock does not carry a fixed dividend right. Rather, dividends on Common Stock occur only as and when declared by a Board of Directors. This is sometimes done on a regular (usually quarterly) basis and in an amount previously announced by the Board as the company's current "dividend rate." However, unlike preferred dividends, a Board remains free to change or eliminate Common Stock dividends without creating arrearages. State corporation laws usually contain certain financial tests that must be met by a company before it is entitled to pay a dividend on any Stock, and a Board's failure to comply with this requirement often results in personal liability for all of the directors for the amount of the unlawfully paid dividend.
2. (UK and HKG) express provisions relating to Dividend Declarations and payments are usually set out in a company's Articles of Association. Standard practice is for the directors to declare and pay interim dividends, which are dividends declared and paid before the company's annual earnings have been determined. Final dividends, which are dividends declared and paid after the company's annual earnings have been determined, are usually recommended by the directors but declared and paid by the shareholders at a general meeting.

3. (DEU) under German law, a general Shareholders' Meeting shall approve the dividend resolution
4. (ESP) under Spanish regulation, a general Shareholders' Meeting shall approve the dividend resolution upon proposal of the Management body (i.e., Board of Directors)
5. (FRA) under French law, dividends attached to Ordinary Shares or Preferred Shares must be approved by the shareholders prior to their Distribution during the Shareholders' Meeting resolving on the approval of the annual accounts. However, the Board may be entitled in certain situations, to distribute interim dividends to the shareholders without prior approval.
6. (ITA) under Italian law, a general Shareholders' Meeting shall approve the dividend Distribution
7. (RUS) a decision approving the payment of a dividend to the shareholders of a company passed by the Shareholders' Meetings following the recommendation of the Board of Directors. Such decision usually states the amount and form of payment, terms of payment, etc. the Charter may provide for the fixed dividend for shareholders of privileged Stock.
8. (SGP) how and when dividends are declared is usually provided in a company's Articles of Association. Typically, the directors will recommend a particular rate of dividend, and the company in general meeting will declare the dividend subject to the maximum recommended by the directors. Note that section 403(1) of the Companies Act of Singapore provides that no dividends shall be payable to shareholders except out of profits.
9. (UAE) under UAE law, directors may declare a dividend out of Distributable Reserves

Jurisdiction:

Don't Ask, Don't Waive: a combination of two provisions: (i) a type of Standstill provision, usually found in a Confidentiality Agreement, that prohibits the Bidder from requesting, privately or publicly, that the Target Company waive the Standstill, and (ii) a Merger Agreement provision, for the benefit of the Buyer that prohibits the Target Company from granting any waivers of the Standstill. These provisions are intended to force Bidders in an Auction or similar context to submit their Best and Final Bids in a process involving the sale of a company, rather than waiting until other Bidders establish a "floor" price that can be topped — the floor price might be lower than a Bidder feeling the heat of a competitive process would otherwise have Bid to win the process outright.

Double Collar: when used to describe Exchange Ratio Collars, Double Collar means there are two Upside Collars and/or two Downside Collars. An example would be a Fixed Exchange Ratio with an initial Upside Collar and Downside Collar. Upon reaching either Collar, the Exchange Ratio would automatically convert to a Floating Exchange Ratio until the Bidder Stock appreciated or depreciated to the second Collar, at which point either the Exchange Ratio would be fixed or one or both parties would have the right to terminate the transaction.

Jurisdiction:

Double Cram-Down: an Acquisition which provides two types of consideration, each of which is limited in amount, and gives Target Company shareholders an election to choose between the two types of consideration. In the event either type of consideration is Oversubscribed, shareholders will be forced to accept the undersubscribed type of consideration. A Double Cram-Down differs from a Cram-Down or Single Cram-Down because in the latter structure only one form of consideration is limited and the Cram-Down, if any, operates only if the limited form of consideration is Oversubscribed.

Jurisdiction:

Double Dummy Merger: a Merger structure in which one party creates a wholly-owned subsidiary (which will become the Holdco). Holdco in turn forms two wholly-owned subsidiaries (the “dummies”) that enter into separate Triangular Mergers with each of the constituent companies, pursuant to which the Common Stock of each constituent company is exchanged for Common Stock of Holdco. The outcome is that Holdco wholly owns both constituent companies as separate entities, and the former common stockholders of each of the constituent companies receive Common Stock of Holdco, the new Parent entity. Sometimes called a Butterfly Merger.

Double Luxco Structure: a post-Credit Crunch method of structuring Credit Facilities in mid- to large-cap LBO Acquisitions of French Target groups in an effort to avoid the Sponsor or the obligor group putting themselves (or threatening to put themselves) in Sauvegarde, the so-called French Chapter 11. Two Luxcos are put in place above the first French company, with the top Luxco granting a Security interest over the Shares in the second Luxco, which owns the French Bidco. Under the EU Insolvency Regulation, the enforcement of this security interest is allowed notwithstanding the opening of Sauvegarde proceedings against the top Luxco (which might happen if its COMI is in or has been moved to France). Double Luxco Structure generates a host of Intercreditor Agreement issues with the Sponsor and the Mezz Lenders.

Jurisdiction:

Double Taxation Treaty: an agreement (usually bilateral) between countries which is intended to prevent taxpayers from being taxed on the same amount of profit or gains in each country. A Double Taxation Treaty often includes reducing the rate of Withholding Taxes that would otherwise be due in respect of payments made by a person in one of the countries to a person resident in the other country, so long as the requirements of the Double Taxation Treaty are met.

Drag-Along: allows a majority shareholder to require that a minority shareholder participate in a sale to a third party. The idea is that a majority shareholder may not be able to recognize the full value of its holdings unless it can sell the entire company to a third party by dragging along minority shareholders. Drag-Along rights generally provide that the minority shareholder receive the same deal terms as the majority shareholder. Compare Tag-Along rights.

Due Diligence: what parties to an M&A transaction and their advisors do to learn about a company. The Buyer (and its lawyers, bankers and accountants) performs Due Diligence so it can understand what it is buying. The aim is to ensure that nothing contradicts the Buyer's understanding of the current state and potential of the business. The individual elements of Due Diligence may include commercial Due Diligence (markets, product and customers), a market report (marketing study), an accountants report (trading record, net asset and taxation position) and legal Due Diligence (implications of litigation, title to assets and intellectual property issues). If a Seller's shareholders are receiving the Buyer's Stock as part of the Merger Consideration, the Seller (and its advisors) performs Due Diligence so it can understand what its shareholders are receiving. Due Diligence activities are broad and range from a review of relevant documents (see Data Room and Virtual Data Room) and Financial Statements to plant visits and interviews with Management, outside accountants, counsel, customers and suppliers.

Jurisdiction:

Due Diligence Condition: a Condition Precedent in an Acquisition Agreement providing that the transaction is subject to the Buyer's satisfactory completion of Due Diligence. In an acquisition financing, a Due Diligence Condition means a Condition Precedent that the commitment is subject to the satisfactory completion of Due Diligence by the arranger. In most Acquisitions both the Buyer and the arranger will be expected to complete their respective Due Diligence prior to signing the Acquisition Agreement or Commitment Letter, removing the need for a Due Diligence Condition. Occasionally, either or both an Acquisition Agreement and related Commitment Letter may contain a Due Diligence Condition, which will have the effect of consummating the transaction far less certain. As a result, Target Companies generally abhor Due Diligence Conditions.

1. (UK and DEU) Due Diligence Conditions are uncommon in the UK and Germany

Dutch Auction Self-Tender: an Auction in which each Seller specifies the price at which it is willing to sell and the Buyer accepts Offers to sell until it has spent the amount it intends to spend, starting with the lowest price offered and working up the pricing ladder until the money to be spent is gone. In a "modified Dutch Auction," the process is the same except that all Sellers are paid the same price based on the lowest price that will allow the Buyer to spend the intended amount.

Duty of Candor:

1. (US) a US Fiduciary Duty of directors under Delaware judicial decisions that requires the Board of Directors to provide shareholders with all the material information necessary in order to decide how to vote on a matter. The Delaware courts have defined materiality using the same definition as the Supreme Court pronounced in the Northway case. Accordingly, at least in theory, compliance with the Duty of Candor requires the same disclosure as the Federal Securities laws.
2. (UK) similar to a UK director's duty to avoid a situation in which one has, or may have, a direct or indirect interest which conflicts, or may conflict, with the interests of the company. The duty is contained in Section 175 of the UK Companies Act. A conflicted or potentially conflicted director will not be considered to have breached his/her duty to avoid conflicts of interest if: (i) the situation cannot reasonably be regarded as likely to give rise to a conflict; or (ii) if directors who are genuinely independent have authorized the conflict, where such authorization is permitted under the company's Articles of Association. See also Directors' Duties.
3. (ESP) directors may not, for their own benefit or for that of their related persons, make investments or engage in any transactions involving company property which the directors have learned about as of result of the performance of their duties. Directors must declare to the Board of Directors and/or the general meeting any situation of indirect conflict they may have with the interest of the company (articles 228 and 229 of the Spanish Companies Act).
4. (FRA) there is no legal definition of Duty of Candor under French law. However, the Corporate Governance Codes provide that directors should inform the Board of Directors of any existing or potential conflicts of interests and should refrain from resolving on any matters in which they have an interest.
5. (SGP) the Companies Act of Singapore requires directors to disclose certain information to a company. For instance, Section 156 of the Companies Act of Singapore requires directors to disclose their interests (whether direct or indirect) in transactions or property with the company. Section 165(1) requires directors to disclose particulars of Interests In Shares, Debentures, participatory interests, Rights, Options and contracts as are necessary to maintain the register of directors' shareholdings.

Jurisdiction:

Duty of Care: the Duty of Care is customarily articulated using the so-called objective “reasonable man” standard — that in making a decision a member of the Board of Directors must use the same degree of care as a reasonable business person would do in the conduct of his/her own business affairs

1. (US) under Delaware statutory law and judicial decisions directors clearly have an obligation to understand the situation and relevant facts, laws, etc., but in doing so are entitled to rely on officers and other directors of the company and on advisers whom they reasonably believe are knowledgeable in the area. The seminal Delaware case on the Duty of Care is Smith v. Van Gorkom, 488 A.2d 858 (Del. 1985), often referred to simply as Van Gorkom. The Duty of Care is one of the two central Fiduciary Duties of directors under US state corporation law. See also Duty of Loyalty.
2. (UK) similar to a UK director's duty to exercise reasonable care, skill and diligence, which is contained in section 174 of the UK Companies Act. The duty requires a director to exercise the care, skill and diligence which would be exercised by a reasonably diligent person with both: (i) the general knowledge, skill and experience that may reasonably be expected of a person carrying out the director's functions; and (ii) the general knowledge, skill and experience that the director actually has. See also Directors' Duties.
3. (DEU) defined term in the Limited Liability Companies Act (Section 43) (Gesetz betreffend die Gesellschaften mit beschränkter Haftung) as well as the German Commercial Code (Section 347) (Handelsgesetzbuch)
4. (ESP) directors will perform their duties with the diligence of a diligent businessman. Each director must keep diligently informed on the progress of the company (article 225 of the Spanish Companies Act).
5. (FRA) there is no legal definition of Duty of Care under French law. However, case law and the Corporate Governance Codes provide that directors should keep themselves informed and used reasonable diligence in order to take informed decisions.
6. (HKG) a director's common law Duty of Care has recently been codified into section 465 of the new Hong Kong Companies Ordinance, which will come into effect from 2014. The duty requires a director to exercise the reasonable care, skill and diligence which would be exercised by a reasonably diligent person with both: (i) the general knowledge, skill and experience that may reasonably be expected of a person carrying out the director's functions; and (ii) the general knowledge, skill and experience that the director actually has. See also Directors' Duties.

7. (ITA) pursuant to the Italian Civil Code, directors must primarily: (i) comply with the duties imposed upon them by law and the Company's Bylaws with the required diligence; (ii) act in the Company's best interest and avoid conflicts of interests; (iii) manage the Company so as to achieve its corporate purpose and therefore avoid any action which could be a deviation from such purpose; and (iv) preserve the value of the Company's assets in order to protect the rights of the creditors and other Stakeholders
8. (SGP) a director's Duty of Care is prescribed under common law and statute. At common law, the Duty of Care requires that the director take as much care in the affairs of his/her company as he/she would reasonably take in his/her own affairs. A person who accepts the office of director of a particular company undertakes the responsibility of ensuring that he/she understands the nature of the duty a director is called upon to perform. The duty will vary according to the experience or skills that the director held himself/herself out to have in support of appointment to the office. The Duty of Care turns upon the natural expectations and reliance placed by shareholders on the experience and skill of a particular director. The standard of care and diligence is objective, namely, whether the director has exercised the same degree of care and diligence as a reasonable director found in his/her position. The statutory statement of the director's duties under section 157(1) of the Companies Act of Singapore is as follows: a director "shall at all times act honestly and use reasonable diligence in the discharge of the duties of his or her office".
9. (UAE) a company's directors owe the Duty of Care to the company itself. Directors' duties are generally much less extensive in the UAE and are found in the Commercial Companies Law, Civil Code (UAE) and Penal Code.

Jurisdiction:

Duty of Loyalty: the Duty of Loyalty encompasses both conflicts of interest (and how to guard against them) and the requirement that the Board of Directors act in Good Faith in what they believe is the best interests of the company and its shareholders

1. (US) the second central Fiduciary Duty of the Board of Directors under state corporation law. See also Duty of Care.
2. (UK) similar to a UK director's duty to promote the success of the company for the benefit of shareholders as a whole. Duty of Loyalty is contained in Section 172 of the UK Companies Act. 7. (ITA) see Duty of Care
8. (SGP) a director has analogous duties at common law and under statute. Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974: the fundamental Federal statute regulating pension and welfare plans covering most classes of employees. ERISA has two primary impacts on M&A transactions. First, a Buyer will almost always conduct Due Diligence on a Target Company's employee benefit plans to confirm that the plans are maintained in accordance with ERISA's requirements. Second, in the event the Buyer is a PE Sponsor (almost all of which manage funds invested by ERISA regulated pension funds), the transaction will need to be structured appropriately to ensure that the pension funds' investment complies with ERISA requirements.

Entire Fairness: a judicially created doctrine under Delaware law which requires that a Controlling Shareholder treat its controlled entity with Entire Fairness when engaging in a transaction with the controlled entity. The most common application of the Entire Fairness doctrine is when the Controlling Shareholder purchases all of the publicly held Stock of the Controlled Company in an Acquisition. In the US, Entire Fairness encompasses both fair process and fair price. Fair process deals with whether and to what degree members of the Board of Directors of the company, independent of the Controlling Shareholder, as well as shareholders, were free of coercion by the Controlling Shareholder in determining their response to the proposed Related Party Transaction.

Fair price addresses whether the consideration proposed to be paid by the Controlling Shareholder in the Related Party Transaction was equivalent to that which would have been received in an arms-length bargain with an unrelated third party.

Note that the term is also used in very broad terms to describe any Securities not offered pursuant to Rule 144A. Eurobond (or quoted Eurobond) also, however, has an additional, separate meaning in a UK tax context, as payments of interest on a “quoted Eurobond” are not subject to UK Withholding Taxes on interest. A quoted Eurobond for these purposes is a Security which is issued by a company, is listed on an “organized stock exchange” and which carries a right to interest (there is no stipulation as to currency in this context, in contrast to the alternative meaning previously described).

Jurisdiction:

Exchange Agent: in a Public Company Merger where the Buyer's Securities form part of the Merger Consideration, the parties will often retain a bank or trust company (referred to in the transaction as an Exchange Agent) to Swap out Target Company Securities for Buyer Securities. For ease of Administration the bank or trust company picked as Exchange Agent will often be the Target Company's Transfer Agent.

Jurisdiction:

Exchange Feature: the feature in a Shareholder Rights Plan permitting holders of Rights (other than the Hostile Bidder) to exchange their rights for Shares of the Company's Common Stock (generally at a one-for-one basis). This feature is less complicated than requiring holders of Rights to exercise them under the Flip-In feature and avoids the need for Rights holders to pay large amounts of cash for their new Shares. An Exchange Feature also allows the Target to invest the cash which is presumably surplus to its operating needs. Although not as Dilutive as requiring exercise of the Rights under the Flip-In feature, the Exchange Feature is considered sufficiently Dilutive to preserve the deterrent value of a Poison Pill.

Jurisdiction:

Exchange Offer: a Unilateral Offer by a Bidder to purchase a Target Company's Securities directly from the owner of those Securities for non-cash consideration (most often Securities of the Bidder), in whole or in part. Other than the form of consideration offered, an Exchange Offer has the same basic legal and economic characteristics as a Tender Offer.

1. (HKG) the term Securities Exchange Offer is used

Jurisdiction:

Exchange Ratio: the amount of Securities that the Buyer will pay for each Share of Target Company Stock. Exchange Ratio is sometimes (but not always) expressed as a mathematical ratio (e.g., 1.55 Shares of Buyer Common Stock for each Share of Target Company Stock or 1.55:1). If the Merger Consideration also includes a cash component, the amount of cash is usually expressed as an addition to the Exchange Ratio (e.g., 1.55 Shares of Buyer Common Stock and $30 for each Share of Target Company Stock). Exchange Ratios may be fixed, in which case the ratio is determined at the time of signing the Acquisition Agreement and does not change, regardless of subsequent changes in the market price of the Buyer's Stock. Exchange Ratios may also be floating, in which case the Exchange Ratio in the Acquisition Agreement is expressed as a formula so that the market value of the Buyer's Stock deliverable at Closing is a constant and the number of Shares of Buyer's Stock that will be exchanged for each Share of Target Company Stock varies depending on the price of the Buyer's Stock over a measurement period immediately preceding Closing. See also Fixed Exchange Ratio and Floating Exchange Ratio.

Jurisdiction:

Exchange Ratio Collar: a way to change the risk allocation inherent in either a Fixed Exchange Ratio or a Floating Exchange Ratio. A Collar limits the effect of a change in market price of the Bidder's Stock in the case of a Fixed Exchange Ratio by either converting the fixed ratio to a Floating Exchange Ratio when the Bidder's Stock price appreciates or depreciates by more than a stated amount, and/or by allowing one or both parties to terminate the Acquisition Agreement. A Collar limits the effect of a change in market price of the Bidder's Stock under a Floating Exchange Ratio by either converting the Floating Exchange Ratio to a Fixed Exchange Ratio when the Bidder's Stock appreciates or depreciates by more than a stated amount, and/or or by allowing one both parties to terminate the agreement. Collars are often negotiated in terms of a percentage movement in the price (or average price over a measurement period) of the Bidder's Stock, e.g., 10 percent or 20 percent.

Jurisdiction:

Exclusion Clause: a contract term that seeks to restrict the rights of the parties. Depending on the nature of the contract, Exclusion Clause enforceability may be subject to limitation in most jurisdictions

Jurisdiction:

Exclusive Financing Commitments: a Lock-Up of one or several of the banks which customarily provide Leverage acquisition financing by a single Bidder or Bidder Group. Depending on the size of the Target Company and the number and identity of the banks that have entered into Exclusive Financing Commitments, an Exclusive Financing Commitment can effectively serve to block Competing Bids.

Jurisdiction:

Exclusive Jurisdiction Provisions: another name for Exclusive Venue Provisions

Jurisdiction:

Exclusive Venue Provisions: specify a contractually selected venue as the exclusive jurisdiction in which claims among the parties to the agreement may be lodged. Exclusive Venue Provisions also customarily specify that the law of the exclusive venue shall govern interpretation and enforcement of the agreement.

1. (US) very commonly an Acquisition Agreement specifies Delaware (or the Chancery Court in Delaware) as the exclusive jurisdiction in which the parties may sue one another on claims arising under the Acquisition Agreement. Similarly, acquisition financing agreements very commonly specify New York, or the Supreme Court in the County of New York as the exclusive jurisdiction in which the parties may sue one another on claims arising under the financing agreement, even if the Acquisition being financed has a different applicable Exclusive Jurisdiction Provision.

Jurisdiction:

Exclusivity: see Exclusivity Agreement

Jurisdiction:

Exclusivity Agreement: an agreement to deal with one party exclusively with respect to a business opportunity. Buyers sometimes seek exclusivity provisions from Sellers with respect to negotiations involving an Acquisition. See also Exclusive Financing provisions and Lock-Up.

Jurisdiction:

Exculpatory Charter Provisions: provisions in a Charter providing that members of the Board of Directors and officers will be exculpated from monetary liability arising in connection with their service to the corporation. Under Delaware law (Section 102(b)(7) of the DGCL), Charters may only exculpate directors from monetary damages for breaches of the Duty of Care, not the Duty of Loyalty. Almost every Public Company incorporated in Delaware has an Exculpatory Charter Provision.

Fair Price Provision: a provision of a Company's Charter or Bylaws that requires that shareholders receive a "fair price" for their equity in a sale of the Target Company, usually defined as a required premium over market or a required premium over a prior Bid price. The purpose of most Fair Price Provisions is to make it too costly for a Buyer to engage in a Two Step Acquisition in which the first step is a Hostile Tender Offer or large Open Market Accumulation program, by requiring the Buyer to pay so much more to acquire the remaining public ownership of the Target Company's Stock that the Second-Step in the Acquisition will not make economic sense.

Jurisdiction:

Jurisdiction:

Fairness Opinion: a letter or similar document from a Financial Advisor to its client, or to the Board of Directors of its client, expressing the Financial Advisor's opinion with respect to the fairness, from a financial point of view, of a proposed Acquisition (if given to the Buyer's Board of Directors) or the Merger Consideration to be paid to the Target's stockholders (if given to the Target's Board of Directors). Fairness Opinions are typically very stylized and not subject to significant negotiation. The function of a Fairness Opinion is usually to support a Board of Directors in its exercise of its Duty of Care. As such, Fairness Opinions are most often obtained by publicly held companies. The practice of obtaining Fairness Opinions, particularly for the Board of Directors of a publicly held Target Company, is routine in the US and gradually becoming more common in non-US M&A transactions.

1. (US) Fairness Opinions became ubiquitous for Public Company Sellers in the US in the mid-1980s after the Delaware Supreme Court noted that a Board, which the court held had not fulfilled its Duty of Care in approving a Merger, had not retained an Investment Banker to advise the Board with respect to the Merger. Smith v. Van Gorkom, 488 A.2d 858 (Del. 1985).

Jurisdiction:

Fee Letter: the part of the Commitment Papers package that sets forth the fees and contains the market flex provisions. The Fee Letter is a separate letter which outlines certain fees to be paid in connection with the various Credit Facilities contemplated by the Commitment Letter. Note that the Fee Letter is often not shared with the Target Company (among others). Always be careful as to whom this letter is distributed.

Jurisdiction:

Fiduciary: a party which has a duty to act solely in the interests of another party. Officers and directors of a corporation/company serve as fiduciaries for the corporation's stockholders/company shareholders and are charged with serving in their best interests.

Jurisdiction:

Fiduciary Out: a provision in an Acquisition Agreement that allows the Board of Directors to terminate the agreement if a "better" deal arises with another party. Almost universally found in No Shop provisions in a Public Company Acquisition Agreements which permit the Target Company (notwithstanding the No Shop provisions) to provide information to and negotiate with a Competing Bidder upon certain determinations made by the Target Company's Board of Directors, including that the proposed Acquisition terms from the competing third party Bidder are or are reasonably likely to become a Superior Proposal.

Jurisdiction:

Fight Letter: a type of Proxy solicitation material, often in the form of a letter to shareholders, which is typically far shorter and punchier than a formal Proxy Statement in a Proxy Contest. Fight Letters, like political ads, seek to persuade the shareholders to vote in the manner proposed by the author.

Jurisdiction:

Fill-Up Rights: when used to describe the consequences of hitting a Downside Collar in a fixed exchange rate deal, means the Bidder has the right (but not the obligation) to change the Exchange Ratio so as to make up for some or all of the loss in market value of the Bidder's Stock. If the Bidder fails to do so, the Target Company would typically have the choice of living with the Fixed Exchange Ratio or terminating the transaction. The new Exchange Ratio could also be subject to a Collar. A variation permits the Bidder to compensate the Target shareholders for some or all of the putative loss in value with cash consideration.

Jurisdiction:

Financial Adviser: see Financial Advisor

Jurisdiction:

Financial Advisor: is typically an Investment Bank acting as an independent contractor that provides advice to a participant in a transaction. A Financial Advisor sometimes, but not always, provides the Board of its client with a Fairness Opinion. Also customarily, though not obligatory, a Financial Advisor prepares presentations for the client's senior Management and/or Board (in which case the financial analysis is often called a Board Book) focusing on the financial aspects of a transaction. Sometimes spelled Financial Adviser.

Jurisdiction:

Financial Assistance: rule prohibiting or restricting the grant by a company of assistance (whether in the form of a loan, a grant, or a guarantee or Security) for the Acquisition or subscription of its own Shares

1. (UK) introduced in jurisdictions throughout the European Community by the Second Council Directive of 13 December 1976 (77/91/EEC), but in varying shades depending on the applicable legal regime, and in particular whether the jurisdiction has a strong Corporate Benefit requirement. Since 1 October 2009 in England and Wales, a Private Company is allowed to provide Financial Assistance other than to support the purchase of Shares in a public Parent company, and no Financial Assistance may be given by public companies save for limited exceptions. However, not every other European country is as generous, and the Financial Assistance rules should be carefully considered before committing to provide secured debt in European financings, as these rules can severely limit (or prevent) the ability to get collateral and guarantees. See also Corporate Benefit.
2. (ESP) introduced in jurisdictions throughout the European Community by the Second Council Directive of 13 December 1976. Financial Assistance in Spanish law refers to assistance given by a company for the purchase of its own Shares or the Shares of its holding companies. In many jurisdictions such assistance is prohibited or restricted by law. In Spain a company cannot anticipate funds, provide loans, provide guaranties or give any kind of Financial Assistance for the Acquisition of the own Shares of the company or any kind of Shares of any other company of the same group (Article 150 of the Spanish Companies Act). A Limited Liability Company cannot anticipate funds, provide loans, provide guaranties or give any kind of Financial Assistance for the Acquisition of the own Shares of the company (Article 143 of the Spanish Companies Act).
- 3 (FRA) Article L. 225-216 of the French Commercial Code provides that a French company shall not advance funds, grant loans or give Security for the purpose of the subscription or the Acquisition of its own Shares by a third party. A breach of such Article constitutes a criminal offence and may lead to the invalidity of the operation concerned. See Guarantee Limitation Language.
4. (HKG) under the Hong Kong Companies Ordinance, a company or its subsidiaries is, subject to certain exceptions, prohibited from giving Financial Assistance directly or indirectly for the purpose of an acquisition of its own Shares, whether the assistance is given before, after or at the same time as the acquisition. Under the new Companies Ordinance (coming into effect from 2014), exceptions will be introduced which will broaden the circumstances under which Financial Assistance will be permitted.

5. (ITA) Article 2358 of the Italian Civil Code, implementing the European directive mentioned above, provides that a company cannot grant loans or guarantees for the purchase or subscription of its own Shares unless certain conditions are met (i.e., among other things, a Whitewash by a general Shareholders' Meeting shall be obtained).
6. (SGP) Section 76 of the Companies Act of Singapore prohibits (save for certain exceptions) a company from giving Financial Assistance to any person whether directly or indirectly for the purpose of the Acquisition or proposed Acquisition of: (i) Shares in the company or units of such Shares; or (ii) Shares in its Holding Company or units of such Shares.
7. (UAE) there are no Financial Assistance provisions in UAE legislation, but there is a proposal to introduce it for Public Companies.

Financial Services Authority: the former regulator for the UK financial services industry, given statutory powers by the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000. The Financial Services Authority's statutory objectives were to maintain market confidence and financial stability, promote public awareness, protect consumers and reduce financial crime. Anyone carrying out a Regulated Activity in the UK had to be authorized by the Financial Services Authority or able to rely on an exemption. In 2013, the FSA was replaced by two new regulatory bodies; (i) the Prudential Regulation Authority (PRA) became the UK's prudential regulator for deposit-takers, insurers and designated investment firms; and (ii) the Financial Conduct Authority became responsible for regulation of conduct in retail, as well as wholesale and financial markets and the infrastructure that supports those markets.

Jurisdiction:

Financing Commitment: usually refers to a binding agreement from a financing source to provide Debt Financing for an Acquisition transaction on specified terms (usually contained in an extensive Term Sheet) subject to the drafting and negotiation of a definitive loan agreement. Financing Commitments are usually obtained from a commercial or Investment Bank or banks, but are sometimes provided by other types of Lenders, including Hedge Funds or entities specializing in providing acquisition financing. See also Commitment Letter.

Jurisdiction:

Financing Condition: a Condition Precedent in the Acquisition Agreement that makes Buyer's obligation to consummate the Acquisition subject to Buyer's obtaining sufficient financing to complete the transaction. Also called a Financing Out. The consequence of a Financing Out is that the Buyer does not have to consummate the Acquisition even where the Buyer has obtained Financing Commitments, if those commitments (as set forth in the Commitment Letter) do not fund. The Financing Out is a big deal and is hugely important to the overall structure of even a financed Acquisition because a Financing Out effectively incorporates into the Acquisition Agreement all the Conditions Precedent in the Commitment Letter. Without a Financing Out, the Buyer will usually negotiate with its Financing Sources to limit or eliminate Conditions Precedent in the Commitment Letter because the Buyer is contractually obligated to consummate the Acquisition whether or not the financing is still available on the Closing Date. Financing Conditions are found principally in LBO transactions. They are a rarity in Strategic Acquisitions unless the Buyer is using significant indebtedness to finance the Acquisition.

1. (UK) Financing Conditions are not typical in UK transactions.

Fixed Charge: a charge taken under English law over a particular asset giving the chargee control over any dealings with that asset. A Fixed Charge is often taken as Security and is distinct from a Floating Charge as the asset charged does not change if Stock levels etc. change. A Fixed Charge ranks ahead of a Floating Charge in the order of repayment in Insolvency.

1. (HKG) a similar concept exists under Hong Kong law

Jurisdiction:

Fixed Exchange Ratio: an Exchange Ratio that does not vary depending on changes in market value of the Buyer's Stock. One way to analyze a Fixed Exchange Ratio is as an allocation of the risk of changes in market value of the Buyer's Stock between signing of an Acquisition Agreement and Closing by assigning to the Buyer's the "risk" of a price increase between signing and consummation, and assigning to the Target Company shareholders the reciprocal "risk" of a price decline between signing and Closing. An alternative analysis views a Fixed Exchange Ratio as an expression of the relative value of the two companies at the time of signing the Acquisition Agreement, a valuation which presumptively does not change merely because the market price of the Buyer's Stock (which may take into account the value of the Acquisition of the Target Company) changes during the interval between signing and Closing.

Jurisdiction:

Fixed Value Exchange Ratio: another name for a Floating Exchange Ratio

Flip-In: a provision in a Poison Pill that grants Rights Holders the right to acquire additional Shares of the Target Company at a steep discount to market (customarily 50 percent) upon a Hostile Bidder acquiring Shares of the Target Company in excess of a specified Pill Trigger

1. (FRA) made in France via the issuance of Warrants which gives the right to acquire additional Shares of the company at a steep discount. Such issuance requires the prior approval of the shareholders.

Jurisdiction:

Flip-Over: as opposed to a Flip-In, this provision in a Poison Pill permits Rights Holders the right to acquire a specified number of Shares of the Bidder at a steep discount to market (customarily 50 percent) if the Target

Company is acquired in a Merger following the triggering of a Pill. The Flip-In provision has never been utilized because no Bidder has ever triggered a Pill and persevered to complete an Acquisition of the Target Company.

Floating Charge: a charge taken under English law over all the assets or a class of assets owned by a company from time to time. The charge "floats" over the assets and allows the chargor to continue to deal with the assets in the Ordinary Course of Business until Crystallization. A Floating Charge ranks behind a Fixed Charge in the order of repayment in Insolvency.

Floating Exchange Ratio: an Exchange Ratio that varies depending on the price of the Buyer's Stock, usually expressed as the number of Shares of Buyer's Stock which, when divided by the market price of the Stock (usually averaged over a measurement period ranging from a few days to as many as 30), produces an agreed dollar amount. Since the point of a Floating Exchange Ratio is to deliver an agreed market value to the Target Company's shareholders, the measurement period is usually set just prior to the Closing Date. In a Floating Exchange Ratio, the Buyer assumes the risk of a decline in its Stock price between signing and Closing (in which case it will have to issue more Shares than it would have had to at signing) and the Target Company shareholders assume the risk of a rise in the Buyer's Stock price between signing and Closing (because, unlike under a Fixed Exchange Ratio, they will not receive any market appreciation due to a rise in price of the Buyer's Shares).

Force the Vote Provision: a provision in an Acquisition Agreement that precludes termination of the agreement prior to a Target Company shareholder vote, even if the Target Company has received a Superior Proposal, is entitled to a Change in Board Recommendation and encourages shareholders to vote against the original Acquisition Agreement. Force the Vote Provisions are very favorable to an incumbent Bidder faced with a Competing Bid because of the timing advantage it confers on the incumbent Bidder and the uncertainty as to whether, if the shareholders vote down the Acquisition Agreement, the Competing Bidder and the Target Company will in fact execute an Acquisition Agreement meeting the terms of the Superior Proposal. By the same token, Target Companies strenuously resist Force the Vote Provisions.

Fractional Shares: like the name suggests, a fractional Share is less than a full Share of Stock. Unless otherwise indicated by the entity's organizational documents, a fractional Share will generally convey a fraction of the economic and voting rights of a full Share. Fractional Shares occur in every instance where an Exchange Ratio is not expressed in whole numbers. However, most Acquisition Agreements provide that Fractional Shares will not be issued. In lieu thereof, the Agreement may either provide a mechanism for buying or selling Fractional Shares among Target Company shareholders or, more commonly, for a cash payment by the Bidder instead of the issuance of a Fractional Share.

A Golden Parachute commonly provides for severance pay in a Multiple of base pay (and usually cash bonus), such as twice as much (2x) or three times as much (3x) as well as continued medical and other benefits; hence the adjective "golden" to describe the arrangement. Golden Parachutes also typically provide for Stock Option Acceleration, Stock Appreciation Rights, Restricted Stock Units, removal of restrictions on all Restricted Stock, payment of enhanced pension benefits (often pursuant to Supplemental Employee Retirement Plans, or SERPs) and 280G Gross Up provisions.

Gross Up: a provision in an agreement which increases the amount of a specified payment so that, after payment of all applicable taxes owed by the recipient resulting from the payment, the recipient receives what it would have received if the payment had not been subject to the applicable taxes. A Tax Gross Up in loan agreements generally protects Lenders which are not otherwise subject to tax in the Lender's jurisdiction from the possible imposition, after the Closing Date, of Withholding Taxes by a taxing authority.

Hart-Scott-Rodino Act: the Hart-Scott-Rodino Antitrust Improvements Act of 1976, as amended (HSR); in general, requires that both the Bidder (the Acquiring Person) and the Target Company (the Acquired Person) make certain filings with the Department of Justice and the Federal Trade Commission at least 30 days (15 days in the case of a Tender Offer or Exchange Offer) prior to consummation of an Acquisition. The two federal antitrust agencies determine among themselves which will take precedence in reviewing the HSR filing. The reviewing agency can, in effect, stay consummation of the Acquisition by making a Second Request for additional information, which has the effect of extending the waiting period until the request has been fulfilled to the satisfaction of the agency. A Second Request ordinarily will be very detailed and compliance with it can take months. Notably HSR is strictly informational and does not change the antitrust principles otherwise applicable to the Acquisition. However, the delay inherent in a Second Request, coupled with its signaling effect in terms of potential agency concern about substantive violations of the antitrust laws, particularly if not expected, can be a concrete setback to deal timing and deal certainty. See Competition Commission.

Insolvency: the more common expression used for describing Bankruptcy (which in certain jurisdictions is more usually applied to the Insolvency only of natural persons, although the terms are colloquially often used inter-changeably). The word describes both certain formal procedures, as well as the financial condition of being “insolvent,” which is the inability to pay one’s debts. This inability can trigger either Balance Sheet Insolvency (liabilities exceeding assets) or cash flow Insolvency (the inability to pay debts as they fall due), which vary according to the jurisdiction (see for example over-indebtedness which is a formulation of what can be seen as Balance Sheet Insolvency). In some jurisdictions, such as England or Germany, both the first two of these measures of Insolvency are in use and will determine eligibility to enter Insolvency proceedings. There is a significant amount of judicial authority on both cash-flow and Balance Sheet Insolvency, meaning that Insolvency is not necessarily easily proven, particularly by a creditor. As a result, and as a general precaution, European finance documents commonly include much wider situations of potential financial distress, including for example, the commencement of any security enforcement, which would be an Event of Default.

Apart from addressing the obvious point that the first lien Lenders get paid out first from collateral proceeds and the second lien Lenders get paid out second in first lien/second lien deals, Intercreditor Agreements also lay out a number of important provisions regarding the right of each Lender group to take action with respect to the collateral and the Borrower generally. For example, in the Mezz market, the terms of the Subordination are set forth in an Intercreditor Agreement between the Mezz Lenders and the Administrative Agent under the Credit Agreement.

The ISDA Schedule is part of the ISDA Master Agreement — an ISDA Master Agreement does not exist without an ISDA Schedule. Jurisdiction:

Leveraged Buyout: an Acquisition transaction in which a Sponsor uses debt as a principal source of cash to buy a Target Company. If the debt is Secured, the Security consists exclusively of the Target's Stock and assets, and neither the Sponsor nor its LBO Funds are liable for the debt. The LBO transaction structure allows Sponsors to finance large Acquisitions on a non-recourse basis to the Sponsor and the LBO Funds it manages and to use a minimum amount of equity capital from its managed funds. The use of debt as a principal source of funds (i.e., the Leverage supplied by debt) has the effect of enhancing the transaction's return on equity as and when the Sponsor cashes in by selling the Target Company at a price higher than its cost basis. Since the Debt Financing has a first call on sale proceeds, the leveraged structure will lead to a higher negative return on equity to the managed funds if the Target Company is sold for an amount less than its cost basis.

Jurisdiction:

Leveraged Buyout Firm: another name for a Private Equity Sponsor

Jurisdiction:

Leveraged Finance: Debt Financing that often refers to the incurrence of indebtedness an amount greater than would be considered "normal." Thus, Leveraged Financing is riskier and has a higher interest rate than ordinary borrowing. Sometimes, the term Leveraged Finance is used only with respect to the issuance of non-Investment Grade debt. Among other things, Leveraged Finance is utilized in connection with LBOs and Leveraged Recapitalizations.

Jurisdiction:

Leveraged Recapitalization: a transaction in which an unusually large dividend is paid to existing shareholders from borrowed funds, so that the resulting entity has a very different Capital Structure, in which debt has been substituted for most of the previously recorded equity on the company's Balance Sheet. From a financial perspective, the transaction creates the same kind of leveraged structure as would result from a conventional LBO, but because the public shareholders have received a dividend rather than a cash-out Acquisition payment, they will retain an equity stake in the now highly leveraged company. The accounting treatment of a Leveraged Recapitalization also differs from an Acquisition under the Purchase Accounting rules of GAAP.

Jurisdiction:

Levered Recap: shorthand for a Leveraged Recapitalization

1. (US) like Partnerships (and unlike corporations), Limited Liability Companies are by default Pass-Through entities (although they can elect to be taxed like taxable corporations). Limited Liability Companies are created under state or national law (for example, in Delaware, by filing a certificate of formation with the Delaware Secretary of State) and are typically governed by an agreement among the company's Members (often called a Limited Liability Company Agreement, Membership Agreement, Members' Agreement or Operating Agreement).

In Delaware and almost all other states, the default requirement for the election of directors is a plurality of votes at a meeting where quorum is present

(i.e., the director candidate with the most votes wins, even if not elected by vote of a majority of the voting Equity Interests constituting a quorum). Many jurisdictions also provide a similar statutory procedure by which two companies are combined by operation of law with neither company being the Survivor. This process is called a Combination or a Statutory Combination, as distinct from a Merger, or a Statutory Merger. Many corporate law statutes provide for Mergers and Combinations of corporations with different forms of business entities, including domestic or foreign corporations, LLCs and LPs. See also alternative transaction structures such as Scheme of Arrangement, Takeover or Cross Border Merger.

Merger of Equals: a term of art for a Merger or other Combination of two relatively similarly sized companies, pursuant to which no or only a small premium is paid to shareholders of one of the constituent companies. The concept is one of Combination, rather than Acquisition, and a Merger of Equals is often characterized by a relatively equal division of senior Management positions among the Management of the constituent companies. A Merger of Equals is not a creature of statute, nor is its precise form, economics and governance structure prescribed by any authoritative source. As such, the concept is very much in the eye of the beholder, and the terminology is often used as a palliative for shareholders and executives of one of the constituent companies who might object to a more openly acquisitive transaction structure.

Like a corporate Charter, laws governing Partnership Agreements are enabling, permitting great scope for private ordering in the Partnership Agreement.

1. (US) Partnerships are subject to a special tax regime — both technical and complicated — spelled out in detail in the US Internal Revenue Code and IRS regulations. It is best to have an experienced Partnership tax lawyer at your side in designing Partnership structures and drafting Partnership Agreements because small slips can have large negative tax consequences.

Poison Pill: an action taken by a company to make its equity less attractive to potential Acquirers in order to prevent being acquired in a Hostile Takeover. Two common types of Poison Pills are the Flip-In, and the Flip-Over. Usually effected by an agreement (Shareholder Rights Plan) between a company and a trust company or similar corporate Fiduciary providing for the issuance to all of a company's shareholders of a Warrant to obtain one Share of the company's Stock at an Exercise Price that is far Out of the Money and further providing that any Acquisition by a third party of more than a specified amount of the outstanding Shares (usually, 10 percent, 15 percent or 20 percent) will, without any further act of the company, convert the Warrant into a Right to buy a multiple number of Shares of the company (perhaps as many as four or five) at half price, except for Warrants held by the third party which cannot be so exercised.

The discriminatory nature of the Warrants, once triggered, makes their issuance vastly Dilutive. The Threat of such massive Dilution (the poison in the Poison Pill) serves as an effective economic deterrent to a purchase by a third party of more than the Pill Trigger amount of Stock. Poison Pills contain mechanisms that allow the company's Board of Directors to disarm them and permit Acquisitions of company Shares in excess of the Trigger percentage in Board of Directors approved situations, thus permitting Friendly Share Acquisitions and Friendly transactions. Poison Pills are by far the most effective Takeover Defense. The effectiveness of the Poison Pill's deterrence is demonstrated by the fact that, in the almost 30 years of the Poison Pill's existence, there appear to have been only two instances in which a third party intentionally triggered a Poison Pill. While initially intended to be pejorative, the term Poison Pill has become ubiquitous and no longer has any meaningful negative implications. See also NOL Pill and Shelf Poison Pill.

1. (US) Poison Pills have been upheld numerous times in Delaware, beginning with the Household decision in 1985. See Moran v. Household Int'l, Inc., 500 A.2d 1346 (Del. 1985); see also Yucaipa Am. Airgas, Inc., 16 A.3d 48 (Del. Ch. 2011).

Generally signed in combination with a custody agreement. Powers of Attorney are also typically found in security agreements, granted by the chargors in favor of the security agent to allow the security agent to complete any tasks imposed on the chargor, which it has failed to complete.

Preclusive doesn't address shareholder choice; rather, it addresses things that would prevent a Takeover Bid, thus mooted the issue of shareholder choice.

Jurisdiction:

Preemptive Bid: an Acquisition Proposal with such good terms, including in particular price, that it closes off (or, more frequently, is perceived to close off) any possibility of receiving a better Competing Bid. Determining whether a Bid is truly preemptive in an Acquisition context is challenging unless the Acquisition process is an Auction open to all comers, the Bid is received during the Auction and all other Bidders drop out. As a result, most Preemptive Bids are matters of perception, not fact.

Jurisdiction:

Pro Forma Financials: a kind of Pro Forma analysis consisting of Financial Statements calculated to reflect the impact of contemplated future events as if they had already occurred. These are the “what if?” numbers. For example, a company could have one million dollars of debt on its Balance Sheet as of December 31. If that company plans to borrow another one million dollars of debt in January, the company’s December 31 debt, Pro Forma for the January borrowing, would be two million dollars.

Jurisdiction:

Pro Rata Acceptance: a mechanism for dealing with an Oversubscribed amount of a Capped type of consideration in which all electing or tendering Target shareholders receive a proportionate amount of the Capped type of consideration

1. (US) in a Partial Offer, where the Bidder seeks only a portion of the Target Company’s Stock and the total consideration is accordingly Capped, provisions in the Williams Act mandate pro rata allocation of the Capped type of consideration. The Williams Act does not apply to Mergers that include two types of consideration, at least one of which is Capped. In a Merger, if the Capped type of consideration is Oversubscribed, the Merger Agreement may provide for allocating the Capped type of consideration either on a Pro Rata or a Per Capita Acceptance basis. Because pro rata allocation of the Capped form of consideration may create unfavorable tax results for certain stockholders, very few Cash Election or Stock Election Mergers use a pro rata allocation methodology. Compare Per Capita Acceptance, which most Cash Election or Stock Election Mergers use.

2. (HKG) typically used in the context of a Rights Issue

A primary feature of Project Finance is that the Lenders advance debt on the basis of their evaluation of the project’s projected revenue-generating capability, rather than the credit quality of the project sponsor or the value of the project assets. The equity of the project company and the project assets, including the project’s revenue-generating contracts and other cash flows, are pledged as collateral for the debt. Those members are typically brokers, dealers and bank custodians, all of whom also pass the vote through to the parties who placed the Shares in the custody of these intermediaries. Eventually, if all goes according to theory, the custodian at the end of the custody chain passes the voting rights onto the ultimate Beneficial Owner.

Registration Rights: a Security holder's rights to force an Issuer to register the holder's Securities for sale under the relevant Securities laws (e.g., in the US, the 1933 Act). These rights enhance the Liquidity of the holder's Securities because registered Securities are freely tradable. Registration Rights can take several forms. Holders of equity Securities obtained in a Private Placement often have rights to demand that the Issuer register their Securities or piggyback onto an offering in which the Issuer is already engaging. See Demand Registration Rights and Piggy Back Registration Rights. In private offerings of High Yield Bond and Convertible debt Securities, Issuers customarily provide Buyers with Registration Rights to enhance the post-Closing Liquidity of the Securities sold in the offering and, in the case of Private Company Issuers, agree to become Reporting Companies under the relevant laws (e.g., in the US, the 1934 Act). See also Reg Rights.

1. (US) the February 2007 changes to Rule 144 have had a significant effect on how Registration Rights are granted in connection with

Jurisdiction:

Revlon Doctrine: a term derived from the famous case Revlon v. MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings, Inc., 506 A.2d 173 (Del. 1986), which is used to describe both a standard of judicial review (or, as it is sometimes called, a level of judicial scrutiny, as in Enhanced Scrutiny) and a required determination by the Board of Directors of the Target Company. In its first usage, the Revlon Doctrine means that, rather than according a Target Company's Board of Directors the substantive and procedural benefits of the Business Judgment Rule, a court will require a showing by the Target

Company that the Board of Directors' determination was reasonable, not merely rational. This level of review is sometimes called Enhanced Scrutiny, in contrast to the favorable presumptions supporting Board of Directors conduct that make up the Business Judgment Rule. In its second usage, the Revlon Doctrine means that to discharge its Fiduciary Duties of care and loyalty, a Target Company Board of Directors has the duty of selling the company at the highest price reasonably available under the circumstances.

Risk Arbitrage: a very common form of Arbitrage in a M&A context. Risk Arbitrage consists of buying Shares of a Target Company on the assumption that the transaction will be completed. Given the risk that the transaction won't be completed, the Stock of a Target almost always trades at a discount to the deal price. The Arbitrageur makes money by successfully betting that the discount is too steep and is vindicated when the deal does Close on schedule. The Arbitrageur loses money when the deal doesn't Close or doesn't Close on time, proving the discount was not steep enough. Some Risk Arbitrageurs do not have another business. Others are Event Driven Hedge Funds which use Risk Arbitrage as one of their investment approaches.

Scheme Meeting: a Shareholders' Meeting convened by an order of the court to vote on a Scheme of Arrangement

Jurisdiction:  UK  HKG  SGP

Scheme of Arrangement: compare Merger

1. (UK) an English statutory procedure involving a compromise or arrangement between a company and a class of its creditors or members, with the sanction of a court. Approval requires 75 percent by value, and a majority of shareholders by number of votes cast. A helpful tool in Restructuring, allowing a Cram-Down to be implemented on creditors within the same Class (e.g., among secured parties) without requiring the company commence full scale Insolvency proceedings such as Administration. Can also be used to effect a P2P/UK public

Takeover by either the cancellation of all existing Shares upon payment of consideration to the Target Company shareholders and the issuance of new Shares to the Bidco (a Cancellation Scheme) or by the transfer of all existing Shares to the Bidco (a Transfer Scheme).

2. (HKG) a statutory procedure involving a compromise or arrangement proposed between a company and its creditors or any class of them, or between the company and its Members and any class of them, which is binding if agreed upon by 75 percent in value of the creditors or Members present and voting at a meeting and sanctioned by the Hong Kong court. A majority in number of those present and voting at the meeting must also approve the Scheme but under the new Companies Ordinance (expected to come into operation in 2014), this headcount test will be replaced by a requirement that no more than 10 percent of the votes of disinterested shareholders be cast against the Scheme. Many Listed Companies in Hong Kong are incorporated in overseas jurisdictions, such as the Cayman Islands, Bermuda and the British Virgin Islands, where similar statutory procedures exist. In Hong Kong, the term is also used to refer to the statutory procedures under the relevant corporate laws in those jurisdictions.
3. (SGP) Section 210 of the Companies Act of Singapore provides for the restructure of a company by way of a Scheme of Arrangement. The company proposes the Scheme to its shareholders and if approved by: (i) three-fourths of the shareholders present in a meeting; and (ii) the Singapore court, the proposed scheme is binding. A Scheme of Arrangement may be used to effect Mergers and Amalgamations in Singapore.

Separation Date: the date under a Poison Pill when the Warrants issued under the Pill are separated from the Common Stock with which they have previously been traded as a unit and thereafter must be traded as a separate Security. The point of the separation is to encourage creation of a market in the Warrants so that holders can sell the Warrants to a third party, rather than exercise them directly. In effect, the third party would be Arbitraging the Warrants in return for assuming the burden of exercising them and reselling the Target Company Stock it receives on exercise. The original holder will be paying the third party a fee for this service in the form of the third party's profit on the arbitrage spread between: (i) the price it paid for the Warrant and the cost of exercise of the Warrant; and (ii) the amount it receives on sale of the Target Shares it receives on exercise of the Warrant. The third-party Arbitrageur can either assume the market risk of the price changes in the Target Company's Common Stock between the time it purchases the Warrant and the time it receives Target Company Shares on exercise of the Warrant, or it can "lock in" its Arbitrage profit by selling short an equivalent number of Target Shares at the time it purchases the Warrant and use the Target Company Shares it receives on exercise to cover its short position.

Commonly prohibited activities in a Standstill include: acquiring voting Securities of the protected party beyond a specified Threshold, making an Offer to acquire the protected party, launching a Proxy Contest against the protected party, voting Securities of the protected party against Management or voting in other specified ways, and joining with a third party seeking to engage in any of these types of transactions. Standstills are commonly found in Non-Disclosure Agreements, settlements of Change of Control contests and Acquisition Agreements for less than all of the equity of the protected party.

Staple: shorthand for Staple Financing

Jurisdiction:

Staple Financing: a financing package offered by an Investment Bank acting as the sell-side advisor in connection with the auctioning of a Target Company. Called "Staple" because the financing package (the Commitment Papers) is figuratively "Stapled" to the Bid materials sent out to potential Buyers. A Staple Financing arrangement can encourage a competitive Auction Process by ensuring that all prospective Bidders have access to adequate funds on terms that may encourage them to offer a more amenable price to the Seller.

1. (US) following the Toys “R” Us and Del Monte cases, there will be increased scrutiny on the conflicted role of Staple Financing providers (given the potentially larger fees a staple financing provider could earn compared with the fees payable as Financial Advisor). The ability to structure a Staple Financing without tainting the sale process by this conflict has become very challenging. As a result, many observers believe Staple Financing will recede and perhaps totally disappear, except in very unusual circumstances. In re Toys “R” Us, Inc., S’holder Litig., 877 A.2d 975 (Del. Ch. 2005); In re Del Monte Foods Co. S’holders Litig., 25 A.3d 813 (Del. Ch. 2011).

Strategic: where a Buyer purchases a Target Company for a particular commercial reason. Common Strategic rationales for an Acquisition are to create certain Synergies with, or to obtain particular assets expected to add value to, the Buyer's existing business interests. Strategic Buyers frequently operate in the same or related industries as the Target Company.

Jurisdiction:

Strategic Bidder: a general name for a Buyer that has Strategic reasons to be interested in acquiring a Target Company. The term is often used in distinction to a financial Bidder which acquires a Target Company in order to improve its performance by changing its internal structures and policies. Presumably, a Strategic Bidder, as its name implies, believes it can create synergistic value through a Combination with the Target Company or between the Target Company and its other businesses. Strategic Bidders are often thought to have an advantage over Strategic Buyers in an Auction because they usually expect to benefit from Synergies if the deal goes through and (at least in theory) can therefore "afford" to pay more for the Target Company. This concept is sometimes referred to as "sharing the synergies," in the sense that some of the expected synergistic value is paid to Target Company shareholders.

For tax reasons in European LBOs, often a Subordinated Shareholder Loan provides the Equity Contribution.

Superior Bid: another name for a Superior Proposal

Jurisdiction:

Superior Offer: another name for a Superior Proposal

Jurisdiction:

Superior Proposal: frequently used as a defined term in the Fiduciary Out provisions of a Public Company Merger Agreement which prescribe the standards that must be met by a Competing Bid in order to give the Target Company a contractual right to terminate the Merger Agreement (almost invariably upon the payment of a prescribed Termination Fee) and enter into an agreement with the Competing Bidder. This right of termination is, of course, the Fiduciary Out. The standards for a Superior Proposal are usually the subject of intense negotiation between the parties, the Buyer seeking to make them as restrictive as possible (within the perceived boundaries of Delaware judicial precedent) and the Target Company seeking to make them as easily met as possible (to create maximum flexibility for it and a Competing Bidder). See also Superior Bid and Superior Offer.

Tail: a period of time after termination of the principal agreement during which benefits or payments may become payable contingent on certain events. For example, most Investment Bankers' Engagement Letters for M&A transactions specify that for a period following termination of the agreement (typically ranging from six to 18 months) the Investment Banker will be paid its agreed upon fee, if the client signs up for or completes a transaction that would have entitled the banker to a fee if it had occurred before the termination of the Engagement Letter. The underlying idea is to protect the Investment Banker against a client terminating the engagement just before agreeing to a deal and to recognize that there usually is a strong element of “but for” causation between the banker’s work on behalf of the client and a deal occurring shortly thereafter (shortly being a relative term in this context).

Tender Agreement: a Target Company's stockholder's agreement to tender or exchange their Securities in a Tender Offer or Exchange Offer

Jurisdiction:

Tender Offer: a Unilateral Offer by a Buyer to purchase a Target Company's Securities directly from the owners of those Securities, usually for all cash. If the Buyer is offering to purchase Securities of the Target for consideration other than all cash, the transaction is more commonly called an Exchange Offer. However, the term Tender Offer is sometimes used generically to describe any Unilateral Offer to purchase another entity's Securities, without regard to the type of consideration offered. A Tender Offer or Exchange Offer, unlike a Merger Agreement, does not need the assent of the Target Company, which is not a party to the transaction. Accordingly, Hostile Takeovers are commonly structured as Tender Offers or Exchange Offers. However, Friendly transactions can and often are structured as a Tender Offer or Exchange Offer, either exclusively or as a first step in a Two-Step Acquisition. See also Exchange Offer.

Term Sheet: summary of a transaction's principal terms. Term Sheets are very common in financing transactions and are an almost universal part of a Commitment Letter. Term Sheets are also very common for proposed Acquisitions of non-public Target Companies, transactions which do not require public disclosure of the negotiations. However, Term Sheets are very uncommon in Public Company Acquisitions because of concerns about required disclosure before the transaction is ripe for public disclosure. Term Sheets are rarely intended to be binding and ordinarily should contain a specific provision to that effect. There are instances, however, in which a party has tried, sometimes successfully, to enforce a Term Sheet in court.

In the M&A financing context, Ticking Fee means a fee associated with a long-term commitment to provide a Bridge Loan or other Credit Facility, which starts accruing the day the Fee Letter is signed (or a specified number of days thereafter) and terminates when the underlying transaction is either consummated or terminated.

Top-Up Option: in a Tender Offer or Exchange Offer context, Top-Up Option means an Option granted by the Target Company to the Buyer to purchase up to all of the Target Company’s authorized but unissued common Shares, exercisable only if the Buyer has received tenders for sufficient Shares to permit it unilaterally to approve a Back-End Merger under both state law and the company’s Charter. The Exercise Price of a Top-Up Option is almost always the Tender Offer or Exchange Offer price and is customarily payable by an unsecured Buyer’s Note, as well as in cash. Top-Up Options only make sense if the Target has enough authorized but unissued common Shares to permit the Buyer to reach the ownership level required for a Short Form Merger. To avoid any state law issues regarding whether the issuance of Shares under a Top-Up Option adversely affects Appraisal Rights because the Top-Up Option is or could be Dilutive to the intrinsic value of Dissenters’ common Shares, the Top-

Up Option contract provision should explicitly provide that any Shares issued under the Top-Up Option are to be disregarded for purposes of Appraisal Rights.

Jurisdiction:

Top-Up Placing: a company's placing of Shares facilitated by a company's substantial or Controlling Shareholder whereby already listed Shares of the existing shareholder(s) are first sold to investors and then the selling shareholder subscribes for the same number of new Shares from the company (subject to obtaining Listing Approval for the new Shares) at the same price, less the expenses incurred in the placing

Jurisdiction:

Total Return Swaps: a type of Swap under which the so-called "long party" receives from its counterparty (typically a Swaps dealer and frequently called the "short party") any economic appreciation in value of a specified "notional" number of common Shares of a company. The long party in return, promises to pay the short party any economic Depreciation in value of the notional number of Shares. The key terms of a Total Return Swap, accordingly, include the notional number of Shares covered, the starting date of the Swap and the ending date. A Total Return Swap gives the long party the economic equivalent of outright ownership of the notional number of Shares, but not voting rights.

1. (US) Total Return Swaps are used for a large number of investment strategies, but are controversial in the M&A context because they do not ordinarily require reporting as beneficial ownership and thus, standing alone, do not Trigger any reporting obligations under Section 13(d) of the Securities Exchange Act
2. (UK) such Option arrangements require disclosure in a UK Takeover, as they constitute Interests in Shares

Some Investors, particularly small Investors, still like to receive paper certificates as evidence of their Stock ownership.

Jurisdiction:

Trees (Running Trees): in the Acquisition context, Trees are references to different Bidders or Financing Sources. So if Sponsor A and Sponsor B were looking at the Target Company, and each had two possible Financing Sources (drafting Commitment Papers), there would be two Acquisition Trees and four financing Trees.

Jurisdiction:

Triangular Merger: a Merger in which the Target Company and a subsidiary of the Buyer are merged, with the result that the Buyer becomes the owner (usually of all the equity) of the resulting merged entity. to initiate the Acquisition through a Tender Offer or Exchange Offer for a majority or all of the Target Company's voting equity Securities. The consideration payable in the Back-End Merger may be the same as in the Front-End Transaction or it may differ. For example, the Front-End Transaction might provide only cash consideration through a Tender Offer, and the Back-End Merger might use only the Buyer's Common Stock as consideration.

Like the Revlon Doctrine, the Unocal/Unitrin Doctrine refers both to a standard of enhanced judicial review and a substantive standard by which Board conduct is measured. In the first usage, the Unocal/Unitrin Doctrine means that a court will not afford a Target's Board the favorable presumptions of the Business Judgment Rule. In its substantive usage, the Unocal/Unitrin Doctrine means that a Board is permitted to adopt a Takeover Defense in compliance with its Fiduciary Duties only if there is a reasonable and legally cognizable Threat to the company and its stockholders, the Takeover Defense is reasonable in relation to the Threat (also called proportional), and the Takeover Defense is neither Coercive or Preclusive. See Unocal v. Mesa Petroleum Co., 493 A.2d 946 (Del. 1985); Unitrin v. Am. General (In re Unitrin, Inc. S'holders Litig.), 651 A.2d 1361 (Del. 1995).

The most commonly used exemption in these situations is to structure the Mezzanine Financing as an investment in a VCOC, achieved by giving VCOC Rights to these Mezz Lenders in a VCOC Side Letter. What are these rights? Well, they are direct contractual rights between the Mezz Lender and the Borrower/operating company that provide the Mezz Lender with enhanced "management rights" providing the Mezz Lender with a right to substantially participate in or substantially influence the Management of the Borrower/operating company. In practice, this typically requires the Mezz Lender to obtain the following three rights: (i) Board Observer rights; (ii) the right to receive more information than is required by the terms of the Credit Agreement; and (iii) the right to consult with Management.

Think of the funds in question as water running down a flight of stairs with a bucket placed on each step — the water (money) flows to the top step first and fills that bucket before the overflow continues on to the second step, and fills that bucket before proceeding to the third step, etc. So, if your deal stipulates you get paid before someone else, your proverbial bucket will be placed higher in the Waterfall. The one most likely to be left with an empty bucket (or in practice, an unpaid obligation) is of course whoever is at the bottom of the Waterfall.
