Modern Slavery Statement

This statement is made pursuant to s54 of the Modern Slavery Act 2015 and constitutes the slavery and human trafficking statement for Latham & Watkins (London) LLP (“Latham & Watkins”, “the Firm”, “we”) for the financial year ending 31 December 2021. Any reference to Latham & Watkins in this statement refers to Latham & Watkins (London) LLP.

Modern slavery encompasses slavery, servitude, human trafficking and forced labour. Latham & Watkins is fundamentally opposed to any form of modern slavery. We are committed to acting ethically, with integrity and transparency in our business dealings, and to putting effective systems and controls in place to attempt to safeguard against any form of modern slavery taking place within our business or our supply chain.

Our business

Our supply chain

Much of our supply chain consists of other regulated professional service providers (typically other legal and financial services firms). We do not have intricate supply chains. We expect these providers to comply with their own regulatory regimes and their own obligations under the Modern Slavery Act 2015. We believe these professional service providers to be low risk in terms of human trafficking and modern slavery. We continue to use our normal supplier approval processes in these instances. If our analysis of the extent of the relevant risks changes, then this will be revisited.

We have developed and disseminated a Vendor Code of Conduct, which targets direct suppliers to Latham & Watkins.

LATHAM & WATKINS

These suppliers are generally ancillary to our provision of legal services (for example, travel, professional services, technology, and business services).

We continue to work on identifying training needs within Latham & Watkins, to ensure that the relevant parts of the Firm have awareness about slavery and human trafficking and how that could affect the Firm's supply chains.

Policies

We are committed to assessing any instance of non-compliance regarding modern slavery on a case by case basis. We have a number of policies in place; including an internal Whistleblowing Policy, a Complaints Handling Policy, Anti-Bribery and Corruption Policy and a Contract Authorisation and Review Policy, which are all relevant to monitor and reduce the risk of non-compliance within our business or its supply chains. We expect all suppliers to comply with our Vendor Code of Conduct.
