➤ Shout out to a securities litigation team at Latham & Watkins for knocking out stock-drop claims against client Frequency Therapeutics Inc. Plaintiffs claimed the company misled investors about a clinical trial for a hearing loss treatment called “FX-322.” But Senior U.S. District Judge William Young in Boston this week found the plaintiff could only potentially show that two of the challenged statements were false and misleading, and for those, the plaintiff hadn’t sufficiently alleged scienter. The Latham team includes partners Kevin McDonough, Jeff Hammel and William (BJ) Trach, who argued the motion to dismiss, and associates Megan Behrman, Ryan Schachne and Cameron Sinsheimer.
