

Managing IP Global Awards 2019

OUTSTANDING LITIGATOR OF THE YEAR 2019

ILLINOIS

DAVID CALLAHAN LATHAM & WATKINS

David Callahan was awarded Outstanding IP Litigator in Illinois for significant representation of clients in patent disputes, including a recent district court win for medical device company Zimmer in a longstanding case against Stryker entity Howmedica. Callahan and his team successfully secured $13.3 million in attorneys' fees after the opponent's patents at issue were invalidated. In addition to Callahan's notable casework, he received multiple recommendations from peers in the patent litigation market, who verify his status as an IP Star.

The 14th Annual Managing IP Awards were held in London, New York and Hong Kong and were attended by more than 700 leading IP practitioners globally.

The winners of the awards were carefully selected following months of hard work by our dedicated research team, who also used publicly-available information and referred to client and peer comments. The awards take into account all activity in the past year, including successful cases, notable client wins and innovative approaches to the law.

The awards also recognised the landmark cases of the past year across Europe, the Americas and Asia.

The selection of the shortlists and winners was rigorous, evidence-based and independent. Managing IP congratulates them all for their brilliant achievements and the contribution they have made to the development of IP practice.

A special thanks goes to all our guests and sponsors and everyone involved in the preparations for the ceremonies.

For the full results and information about the research methodology, please visit: ManagingIP.com/Awards