➤ Shout-out to securities litigators at Latham & Watkins and Fenwick & West representing Docusign Inc. and certain former executives in a case accusing the company of misleading investors about demand for eSignature products after a surge in use during the pandemic. U.S. Judge Vince Chhabria in San Francisco dismissed the suit with prejudice this week, finding investors adequately alleged just one misleading statement. But the judge found even claims regarding that particular statement—something then-CEO Daniel Springer said about customer churn—didn't adequately allege that Springer knew that what he was saying was false. The Latham team included Andrew Clubok, Michele Johnson, Melanie Blunsch, Susan Engel and Whitney Weber, and associates Jordan Mundell, Alexander Mills, Raena Waldman, Megan Warren and Erin Lee, with co-counsel at Fenwick & West, including Dean Kristy, Jennifer Bretan and Felix Lee.
