► Runners-up honors also go to Shearman & Sterling partners Ryan Shores, Todd Stenerson and Adam Schwartz who helped defense contractor Booz Allen Hamilton fend off a challenge from DOJ's Antitrust Division to the company's $440 million acquisition of tech company EverWatch. In a decision made public last week, U.S. District Judge Catherine Blake in Baltimore found the government was attempting to "gerrymander" its way to a market definition applicable to a single NSA procurement. Blake's ruling comes after a two-day evidentiary hearing before Blake in September, which itself came at the end of 10-week blitz by the Shearman team to conduct document discovery, 15 fact and expert depositions and motions practice alongside EverWatch's counsel at Latham & Watkins : Amanda Reeves, Al Pfeiffer, Maggy Sullivan, Kelly Fayne, Anna Rathbun, Molly Barron, Charlie Beller, Chris Brown, and Graham Haviland.
